(*) STOKES . Clement's "First Settlers of Newton, 1877-
John Stokes of Wentworth street and Tjomas Hooten of the Parish of St. Ann, Black Friars, in the Parish of Stepney, both of which places are in London, in the county of Middlesex, Eng. became the owners as tennants in common, of a certain amount of proprietory rights in West New Jersey. John Stokes was a baker, and Thomas Hooten was a tallow chandler. Thomas Hooten and John Stokes were relatives, perhaps their wives were sisters, both were members of the religious denomination of Friends, and were seeking some new place of abode, where their notions of right might be more freely indulged in. Thomas Hooten came immediately to N. J. to look after their interests, leaving his family in London until he should be heard from. On the 29th day of the 8th mo., 1677 he wrote to his wife, telling her of his new home in the town of Burliggton, and she soon closed up the affairs and came to America.

John Stokes, however, remained in London supplying the people with bread and husbanding his means to develop his interests here through his brother Thomas. Of this there is undoubted evidence, for as late as 1719, in a conveyance of land he is called John Stokes of Wentworth St., London.

Thomas Stokes md. Mary Barnard of Stepney in 1668, where he remained until he came to America. He and his family came among the first, as they arrived at New Castle about the middle of the 6th m, 1677, in the ship Kent, and went immediately to Burlington. It is probable that three of his children were born in London and three in N. J. They were- Sarah who md. Benjamin Moore, Mary who md. John Hudson, John who md. Elizabeth Green, Thomas who md. Deliverance Horner and Rachel Wright, Joseph who md. Judith Lippincott, and Ann Haines (widow, and one other son who moved to North Carolina. Mary, the mother died in 1699 and Thomas, the father in 1718, aged 78 years.

MICHIGAN HISTORIC SITE

BIDDLE HOUSE

This house is probably the oldest on the island. Parts of it may date from 1780. A deed to the property, upon which a $100 down payment was made in 1822 by Edward Biddle, was obtained by him in 1827 from the then owner. Biddle was a cousin of the Biddles of Philadelphia and a leading trader and citizen. For years he lived here with his Indian wife. The house is an example of the Quebec rural style. It is listed in the Historic American Buildings Survey and was restored by the Michigan Society of Architects and the building industry in 1959.

and for this reason they are not classed as settlers of the township. The first permanent homesteaders have already been mentioned; namely, James Elliott, J. W. Shields, and William Polke whose claims of prior residence in this territory have been discussed above. The following are recognized as being among the first settlers of this township: John Davidson, who came here in 1833; William Moore; James Moore; James McColm; Robert, Anthony, and William H. Martin; George Bozarth; Lot N. Bozarth; Jesse Buzan; John B. Ward; William Spencer; Samuel Parker; Ebenezer Ward; Joseph and William Robbins; and John Shoup. A little later than the above named came the following who also were instrumental in developing this new county: Alexander Chamberlain, Anthony F. Smith, Michael B. Brouillette, Robert Hollyday, Joseph Anderson, Jesse Shields, John J. Shyrock, Kline G. Shyrock, and Frederick Ault. These, and doubtless others settled in Rochester township, a large majority locating either in Rochester or very close to it and many spending their entire after lives in the township.

No attempt toward permanent settlement was made in Henry township until February, 1836, when four men, Josiah Terrell, Joseph Terrell, Willam Biddle, and Caleb Stradley located there with their families. They were joined in June of that year by William Whittenberger and his family of twelve who came from Medina county, Ohio, to settle on a tract of land south of the present village of Akron. In this journey to Fulton county, they were accompanied by Dr. Joseph Sippy and family, Asher Welton, with his wife and ten children, Henry Bristol, with his wife and seven children, Moses Werdon, with wife and child, Uriah Bragg, with his wife and two children, and Nathaniel Coggeshall, unmarried and a brother-in-law of Dr. Sippy and Uriah Bragg. Before the close of 1836, Thomas Clifton, Sr., and Thomas Clifton, Jr., each came to the new territory with their families, to be followed in 1837, by Hugh Bryant, Henry Hoover, and John Ball with their families.

During the next twelve years, a steady stream of settlers flowed into the township, and these pioneers labored to clear the land, build homes, and cultivate the fields that have grown to be a credit to the township and the county.

August, 1836, witnessed the arrival of the first white settlers of Newcastle township. They were Job Meredith and his nephew, Peter Meredith, who entered land in section 5 and section 4 respectively. They immediately set to work to erect a cabin on the property of Job Meredith, but they returned to their home in Coshocton county, Ohio, to spend the winter. In February, 1837, they brought their families to their homestead in Fulton county to begin the work of clearing and improving the land. With them on their return journey came Thomas Meredith, a brother of Peter, who also entered land in section 4. James Wright, who located in Rochester township in 1836, then purchased land in section 15 in Newcastle township the following year, where he remained until his death in 1873. Until the fall of 1837, these families were the only ones in the township. In that season Robert Meredith, a brother of Peter and Thomas, entered land in section 9, and he was followed in a few weeks by Benjamin Montgomery who located with his family in section 23, where he resided until his death. The autumn of 1837 also saw the advent of Joseph Sanns who cleared and improved a large farm in the southeast corner of section 32. The spring of 1838 was a period of much immigration to Newcastle township. At that time came the following men to make a home in the half wild country: James Kennedy, John and Isaac Culver, Caleb Montgomery, Richard Coplen, Walter Courll, Joseph and Andrew Edwards, Leander Chamberlain, James Jenkins, George Fultz, and Thomas Hamlett, who was followed by his brother Bartley M. Hamlett in 1839. The last named established the first blacksmith shop in Newcastle township. To these men is given the credit for opening up the lands of one of Fulton county's most productive townships.

is an iron worker by trade, lives in Madison, Illinois, and married Mollie Myers; and Wade, who lives retired in Muncie, Indiana. Mr. Bailey, the father of these children, was born in Indiana, educated himself for the law and was admitted to the Indiana bar, was a republican in politics, and died in 1895. The mother of Mrs. Tucker was born in Parke County, Indiana, was educated in the common and high schools, and is now living at Muncie, Indiana. Both she and her husband were members of the New Light Church. Mrs. Tucker was educated in the common schools and city schools. She is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. and Mrs. Tucker reside in a pretty cottage in Chalmers, and are citizens who command the respect of all.

SAMUEL WILSON. An unusually successful career was that of the late Samuel Wilson, who though a resident of White County only about twenty years, made that a time of great accomplishment, and as a farmer and stock raiser stood second to none in his generation.

Born near Darbyville, Ohio, in 1849, the late Samuel Wilson had in his veins a mixture of Scotch, Irish, English, Dutch, Welsh and German blood. He was reared and educated in Ohio, and arrived within the limits of White County on March 4, 1888. For thirteen years he showed his capabilities as a farmer and stock raiser in the management of a thousand acres of land, which he rented. As a stock man he paid particular attention to the Shorthorn and Polled-Angus breed. In 1899 Mr. Wilson bought eighty acres of land and a year later secured the two hundred forty acres adjoining in West Point Township, thus giving him the large farm of three hundred twenty acres.

While living in Ohio in 1873, Samuel Wilson married Mathilda Hill. Their six children were: Fred Thomas; Randall A.; Julia E., wife of Elton Burget; Robert, now deceased; Samuel E.; and Agnes L. The late Mr. Wilson was a democrat in politics and held several minor offices, though they came to him without his asking. He was a member of the Baptist Church and died in that faith April 11, 1909, and is now at rest in West Point Cemetery. His widow is living in Chalmers.

GEORGE W. CHAMBERLAIN. Four generations of the Chamberlain family have found representation in White County, and this mere statement in itself bears significance, for it indicates conclusively that the family name has been associated with the history of the county since the early pioneer days. Further than this, those who have borne the name have in each successive generation stood exponent of the best type of citizenship and have given to the world assurance of sterling integrity and worthy achievement. He to whom this memoir is dedicated was a scion of the second generation of the family in White County and was a lad of about seven years when, in 1843, his parents established their home in what is now West Point Township, this county, where his father became one of the organizers of this township, even as he was one of the strong and loyal pioneers who here instituted a reclamation of a productive farm from the virtual wilderness. George W. Chamberlain was a man of staunch rectitude, broad mental grasp and much constructive ability, his having been a large and benignant influence in connection with the civic and industrial progress and prosperity of White County, where his memory is held in enduring honor now that he has passed from the stage of life's mortal endeavors, his death having occurred on the 5th of October, 1913, and his remains being laid to rest in the West Point Cemetery.

George W. Chamberlain was born in Carroll County, Indiana, on the 12th of September, 1836, and was a son of Aaron and Elizabeth (Thatcher) Chamberlain. His father was a native of Pennsylvania and was there reared to adult age under conditions and influences that admirably fitted him for his subsequent activities as one of the sturdy pioneers of the fine old Hoosier State, where he initiated the reclamation and cultivation of lands that are worth nearly fifty times as much as was paid for the property in the pioneer era. Aaron Chamberlain was born in the year 1805, and was in the very prime of his strong and resourceful manhood when he came from the old Keystone State to cast in his lot with the pioneers of Indiana. He came with his family to White County in the year 1843, and obtained a tract of wild land now included in West Point Township. He was actively associated in the organization of the township and with all community affairs of public order, with secure place in the confidence and good will of all who knew him. With characteristic energy and discrimination he set to himself the herculean task of reclaiming his embryonic farm, but he lived only six years after establishing his home in White County, where he died, at his pioneer homestead, in 1849, shortly prior to his fiftieth birthday anniversary. His wife survived him by a number of years, and the names of both merit high place on the roll of the honored pioneers of White County. They became the parents of ten children, namely: Joseph, Henry, Henrietta, Daniel, George W., Emeline, Caroline, Mary, John and Aaron. All of the children are now deceased except Henry, who is a well known resident of Big Creek Township, this county.

George W. Chamberlain was a child at the time of the family removal from Carroll County to Tippecanoe County, in which latter county the family home was maintained several years, near Battleground. In 1843, as already noted in a preceding paragraph, removal was made to White

County and a home was established in West Point Township, which had not yet been set off as a separate subdivision of the county. Here young George was reared to manhood under the invigorating discipline of the pioneer farm, and he early began to contribute his quota to its work, the while he made good use of the advantages afforded in the early schools of the community and laid adequate foundation upon which to rear the superstructure of broad knowledge and mature judgment that denoted the man of later years. He became one of the extensive landholders and representative agriculturists of the county that was his home for the long period of seventy years, and at the time of his death he was the owner of a valuable landed estate of 1,120 acres in White County, where few men could claim more extended possessions in evidence of worthy material success and prosperity. He stood representative of the best in the community life and fully merited the unqualified esteem in which he was uniformly held. Somewhat conservative in his opinions, he was firm in his convictions and combined with an abundant physical vigor an equal staunchness in upholding what he believed to be right, whether in politics, religion or general morality. He was independent and fearless, seldom required advice from others, though he was a valued counsellor to others. He gave close attention to his business activities as one of the foremost agriculturists and stockgrowers of White County, and from his honorable and well directed endeavors he achieved large and worthy success.

Well fortified in his views concerning governmental and economic policies, he accorded allegiance to the democratic party, though he had no predilection for the activities of so called practical politics. He never sought public office, but his civic loyalty was such that he did not refuse his service when called to local positions of trust, including those of township supervisor and township assessor. He was affiliated with the lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows at Chalmers and was an earnest member of the Universalist Church.

On the 15th of March, 1860, was solemnized the marriage of Mr. Chamberlain to Miss Eliza Robinson, who likewise was born and reared in Indiana, as a member of a sterling pioneer family of this favored commonwealth. Of the nine children of this union Eva, Mary and Caroline are deceased; Rosa Ann is the wife of Eldon Bostick and they reside in Honey Creek Township; John W. is individually mentioned on other pages of this publication; Josephine is the wife of William Shumaker, of Big Creek Township; Lee and Robert are prosperous agriculturists in West Point Township; and Sarah is the wife of Arthur Crockett, of Denver, Colorado. Mrs. Chamberlain died in June, 1884. She was a Methodist in belief.

John W. Chamberlain. A scion in the third generation of a family whose name has been one of special prominence and influence in connection with the social and material development and upbuilding of White County, John W. Chamberlain has made himself a worthy successor to his honored father, both as a loyal and progressive citizen and as one of the substantial exponents of the great basic industries of agriculture and stock-growing in his native county, where he is recognized as one of the leading citizens of West Point township. On other pages of this work is entered a memorial tribute to his father, the late George W. Chamberlain, and thus a further review of the family history is not demanded in the present connection.

On the old homestead farm of the family, in section 12, range 5 West, of West Point Township, John W. Chamberlain was born on the 10th of November, 1867, and virtually all of the intervening years have found him a resident within the borders of his native township, where he well upheld the prestige of a name that has been honored in the annals of the county from the early pioneer era to the present time. The conditions and influences of the home farm compassed the period of his boyhood and youth and in this connection he early learned the valuable lessons of practical industry and came to proper appreciation of the dignity and value of honest toil and endeavor. He received excellent educational advantages and put his scholastic attainments to practical test by two terms of service in the pedagogic profession, as teacher in the Lake View School, in Big Creek Township.

In 1890, when about twenty-three years of age, Mr. Chamberlain further fortified himself for the battle of life by taking unto himself a wife, in the person of Miss Lillie Jarrett, a daughter of Levi and Lydia Jarrett, of Prairie Township, this county. After more than twenty years of happy domestic life the gracious home circle was broken by the death of Mrs. Chamberlain, who was summoned to the life eternal on September 14, 1913,—about one month prior to the death of her husband's venerable father. Her remains were interred in the cemetery maintained at Chalmers by the Knights of Pythias, and her memory is revered by all who came within the sphere of her gentle influence. Mrs. Chamberlain is survived by four children, all of whom have been given excellent educational advantages: Leroy and his wife, whose maiden name was Ethel Hambridge, reside in West Point Township, where he represents the fourth generation of the family as a farmer in this township; and Viola Hazel, J. Ford, and Estella Maude all remain at the paternal home, which is known for its generous hospitality.

Mr. Chamberlain has achieved definite success as a general agriculturist and stockgrower, and his finely improved farm of 240 acres is eligibly situated three miles west of the Village of Chalmers. In addition to giving close attention to the work and management of his farm Mr. Chamberlain has exercised his resources in a number of ways for the benefit of local business and the furtherance of legitimate improvements. He is a stockholder and director of the State Bank of Chalmers, the Chalmers Grain Company, which operates a modern grain elevator at Chalmers, and of the Chalmers Telephone Company. He has made a specially admirable record also in connection with the good-roads movement, and is one of the enterprising citizens who not only believe in but are willing to work for well made public highways. It was through his initiative that the John H. Moore turnpike road was constructed between Big Creek and West Point townships.

For a number of years the name of Mr. Chamberlain has had a political significance in his native township, and he is a recognized leader in the councils of the democratic party in White County. His principal public service was rendered in the office of township trustee, which he filled with credit and with exceptional benefit to the township, especially its schools, during a period of ten years. His first term extended from November, 1900, to January 1, 1905, and his second term from January 1, 1909, to January 1, 1915. Mr. Chamberlain is affiliated with Chalmers Lodge, No. 178, Knights of Pythias, and holds membership in the Baptist Church, of which his wife likewise was a zealous adherent.

LEWIS B. MARTIN. During a residence in White County of nearly half a century, Lewis B. Martin has not only identified himself in a successful manner with the cares and responsibilities of farm management, but has possessed and exercised that public spirit which looks after the welfare of the community, and supports institutions and movements that have a broader significance than the well being of the individual. Mr. Martin has one of the fine rural places in West Point Township, situated on rural route No. 12 out of Chalmers.

Though not a native of White County he was brought here in early youth by his father, John W. Martin, who was born in Franklin County, Ohio, March 12, 1828, and moved with his family to White County on November 18, 1865. He was reared in his native state and was married there in 1849 to Samantha J. Neiswander, who was born November 20, 1832, and died July 25, 1901. Her parents were natives of Germany. John W. Martin was a son of John J. Martin, a native of Scotland but of English stock. Of the nine children born to John W. and wife, two died in infancy. Charlotte is the wife of Soloman Carr and lives in Frankfort, Indiana. The second oldest is Lewis B. Virgil A. and Henry Chamberlin. One of the oldest residents of White County is Henry Chamberlin of Big Creek Township. He has lived in this part of Indiana so many years that his range of recollection comprises practically every phase of development and improvement that would be mentioned in any general survey of local history. The activities of his life have been largely concentrated on farming, and his fine farm in Big Creek Township represents to a great extent improvements that bear the direct impress of his own labor and management. He is a prosperous citizen and a man of fine reputation in that part of the county.

Henry Chamberlin was born in Ontario County, New York, December 29, 1830, son of Aaron and Elizabeth (Thatcher) Chamberlin. He was the second in a family of ten children. His mother was born in New Jersey and his father in Pennsylvania. In early life Aaron Chamberlin was employed in rafting on the Delaware River, and later took up farming in Ontario County, New York, where he was married. In the fall of 1834 he brought his family to Carroll County, Indiana, when Henry Chamberlin was about four years of age. In the spring of 1837 they removed to Tippecanoe County, where his father farmed on shares until the spring of 1843, and then moved to West Point Township in White County. Here he entered a quarter section of land, and made that his home until his death on February 29, 1849. His widow survived him many years, passing away May 30, 1882.

Henry Chamberlin was thirteen years old when he came to White County, grew up on his father's homestead, and had only the limited education which the local schools of that day could supply, and the necessities of the little household precluded regular attendance even at such schools as were available. After his father's death, when he had arrived at manhood he went out to work by the month for other farmers, and was also employed along the old Wabash and Erie Canal. This was his principal work for four years. In the spring of 1859 Mr. Chamberlin bought his present farm of 160 acres. Its present condition shows how well he acquitted himself of the heavy task of improvement. He opened up ditches, from time to time invested in tile and thus cleared away the water which made such a formidable obstacle to agriculture, and at the same time cleared away the woods and the brush. He also erected substantial buildings.

— Great Grandfathers sister

On March 2, 1854, Mr. Chamberlin married Catherine J. Biddle, who was born in the City of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, March 11, 1838. Mrs. Chamberlin died November 23, 1913, at Lafayette, Indiana. To their union were born five children, only three of whom grew up and the only one now living is Henrietta, wife of Ira Baldwin, and still living in White County. The daughter, Clara, who died some years ago, married Harry McClain; while Edward H. died unmarried.

Mr. Chamberlin is a Mason and in politics a democrat. When he came to this county seventy years ago there were no towns of any importance, and none of the large cities of the state had yet advanced beyond the village stage. He can recall the time when the building of the Monon Railroad was a subject of general discussion in the locality. In the early days he could have skated the entire distance of six miles from his present home to Monticello, since at times practically all the country was under water. He continued actively in his business as farmer until he was eighty-one years of age, and now rents his land, and lives alone at home, enjoying the contentment and prosperity which are the proper rewards for a life of such continued enterprise. During the war Mr. Chamberlin was drafted for the army, and later volunteered, but on both occasions was rejected on account of poor health.

Death of William Biddle.

William Biddle Jr., son of Dr. William Biddle and Sarah Underwood Biddle, was born at Pittsburg, Penn. June 13, 1833, and died March 7, 1914, at the age of 80 years.

Coming to Indiana when a child, he was one of the pioneers of the state. He was married to Emaline Chamberlain August 7, 1857, who with three of their four children have passed away.

Mr. Biddle prepared himself for a dentist but spent most of his life as a farmer. At one time he was a member of the Masonic Lodge and also was at one time a member of the Methodist church.

For many years Mr. Biddle has been a sufferer of cancer. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. James McCormick of Chalmers, two brothers and two grand-daughters and many friends to mourn his departure.

Appropriate funeral services were held at the home of James McCormick, his son in law, by Rev. O. L. Chivington Tuesday March 10, at 10:00 o'clock.

The remains were taken to the Lane cemetery for burial.

MONTICELLO HERALD,
March 5 1914

IN A BAD SHAPE

Telephone Situation Shows No Improvement.

COMPANY REFUSES DEMANDS

Many Phones Out in City as a Resul ---Public Service Commission Will Give a Hearing.

A second meeting of Monticello telephone subscribers was held at the court room Saturday evening to consider whatever answer the Telephone Company might have made to the committee appointed the Tuesday evening before. No answer of any kind had been received until that evening, and when the meeting was called to order by Chairman Richey it was apparently without any well defined idea of what line of action would be taken.

Attorney Carey as chairman of the committee read to the meeting the company's reply as below, which he said had been handed to him since supper.

February 28, 1914.

To L. D. Carey a others:

Your communication dated Feb. 24, 1914, was received o the 26th, instant, and although it seems emphatic in its character, we beg leave to say to you that we desire as much as you to have all differences on the rural lines adjusted and settled, but realize that it was and is impossible within so short a time to adjust differences with one hundred subscribers.

All this company has ever asked is the signing of contracts which would secure the payment of its rents in advance and avoid losses.

As to your second demand, to-wit: That you have free service with a new company when formed, that can not be agreed to now as there is no company in operation with which a contract could be made and if there were we can not now say that a contract could be agreed upon which would be fair to both parties.

Your third, fourth and fifth demands are, that you have free use of the independent telephone systems at Reynolds, Yeoman and Idaville. This company does not own or control either of the companies named. You must have known that when you prepared and signed your communication, and must have known that a compliance with your demands was just as impossible as if you had demanded free service over the Bell system.

This company would be glad if it could give you free service in every part of the county and State, but as no one has power to take the property or services of others without due compensation and would violate the fundamental of the land by doing so, it respectfully suggests that it should not be required to promise to do that which it knows beforehand it could not perform.

The matters which you enumerate

What the final outcome will be body can foretell. A petition arate and distinct from the one ready mentioned but reciting same grievances and asking the s relief was sent last week to the Pu Service Commission, signed by ele city patrons of the Monticello T phone Company. Notice has been ceived by the company from the C mission that a hearing will be gi "ten days after Feb. 28th" and designate a representative to app for them. Not much significance attached to the proposed hearing a solution of the trouble, for the reas that it cannot compel withdrawn su scribers to return, and most of th withdrawn say they are off to s until their demands are met or u there is a change in the managem of the company. However, there others who will be guided by decision of the commission, and accept it as sufficient reason for or ing their phones in again.

In the meantime the Buffalo pe have completed the organization their company and filed their arti of incorporation.

Dutchman's Account of his Courtship.—Vonce, ven I court my Caterine, I vos go on my field to hoe my potatoes corn. Vel, den I sees Caterine comin' der road, so I dinks to give him a boo, so I climes a tree and shust as I vas going to boo him, I falls off on der fence and sticks a pig knot-hole in my pantaloons, and Caterine vas laf and makes me more shame than a sheep mit von tam dief on his pack—true as a book.

☞ A young lady, calling herself French, who says she resides near Attica, Ind., arrived in one of the northern stages last Saturday evening, and took lodgings at the Temperance House in this village, where she remained until a late hour on Monday night. Feeling, perhaps, in a rather "peculiar situation," she stepped forth to procure medical aid, and soon arrived at the residence of one of our physicians, in another quarter of the town, where she was soon delivered of a fine daughter!

This unfortunate woman says she never was married, and of course the father of this "hopeful" is in-cog!—Iroquois Jour.

9 yrs. older than Wm. G.

Before leaving England - Gawen Laurie & Nicholas Lucas, trustees for Edward Byllynge's creditors, Two deeds are recorded under date of January 22nd, 1677, one for a full share for Daniel Wills, Thomas Olive and William Biddle and the other for a share to Wills and Olive. A half interest in the latter share was sold to William Biddle on April 4, 1677. These deeds would give Daniel Wills the right to locate approximately 17,000 acres of West Jersey (They purchased large proprietary rights for land in West Jersey from William Penn before leaving England.)

Biddle - William Biddle, Shoemaker, and Sarah Kempe Biddle with their two children, William and Sarah, arrived at Burlington in the summer of 1681. Before leaving England he purchased proprietary rights to many thousands of acres in West Jersey from the trustees of Edward Byllynge and others.

Jan 22, 1676-7. William Penn, Gawen Lawrie, Nicholas Lucas and Edward Byllynge to William Biddle, of Bishopgate Street London, Shoemaker; Thomas Olive of Wellingborough, North Hampton Co. Haberdasher and Daniel Wills of the town of North Hampton, practicioner in Chymestry, for one share of West Jersey.

MRS. CAMILLA J. THOMPSON, 27 Columbia apartments, life-long resident of Lafayette, will be 90 years old tomorrow. She will observe the anniversary at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lewis W. Nalley, 211 South Sixth street, with whom she is spending several weeks. Her first husband, Henry Moore, was killed 59 years ago this week when his horse and buggy was struck by a train in a snowstorm. She later married Samuel S. Thompson, who is also dead. Mrs. Thompson is a granddaughter of the famed Dr. William Biddle, who came here from Philadelphia, Pa., in the early days, and she is also distant cousin of Francis Biddle, attorney general of the United States.

Mrs. Thompson Marks 98th Year

Mrs. Camilla J. Thompson celebrated her 98th birthday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. W. Nalley, 221 South Sixth street. Dinner was served to the family. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Holladay, of Kersey. Mr. Holladay is a grandson of Mrs. Thompson. During the evening many friends called to wish Mrs. Thompson a happy birthday and good health. She received 108 birthday cards, many telegrams and flowers.

Mrs. Thompson was born in Lafayette Dec. 17, 1854. She is the former Camilla J. Biddle and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Biddle. Her grandfather, Dr. William Biddle, opened his doctor's office here in 1849. Mrs. Thompson and her husband, the late Samuel Thompson, were married in Lafayette. Only one daughter, Mrs. Nalley, is living.

Although Mrs. Thompson has been ill for a number of weeks, her condition has improved. Mrs. Thompson is a member of Trinity Methodist church.

Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Nalley expect Mrs. Thompson's grandson, Hebert F. Moore, of Indianapolis, here for a visit.

CHALMERS DISPATCH

Mch 13 1914

Death of William Biddle.

William Biddle Jr., son of Dr. William Biddle and Sarah Underwood Biddle, was born at Pittsburg, Penn. June 13, 1833, and died March 7, 1914, at the age of 80 years.

Coming to Indiana when a child, he was one of the pioneers of the state. He was married to Emaline Chamberlain August 7, 1857, who with three of their four children have passed away.

Mr. Biddle prepared himself for a dentist but spent most of his life as a farmer. At one time he was a member of the Masonic Lodge and also was at one time a member of the Methodist church.

For many years Mr. Biddle has been a sufferer of cancer. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. James McCormick of Chalmers, two brothers and two grand-daughters and many friends to mourn his departure.

Appropriate funeral services were held at the home of James McCormick, his son in law, by Rev. O. L. Curvington Tuesday March 10, at 10:00 o'clock.

The remains were taken to the Lane cemetery for burial.

Member Biddle Dies

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — Francis Biddle, a Republican patrician who voted for Alfred E. Smith in 1928, for Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932, and eventually became an ardent New Dealer and World War II attorney general in Roosevelt's Cabinet, died Friday at Cape Cod Hospital. He was 82.

His home was in Washington, D.C., but he was at his summer home in Wellfleet on Cape Cod when he entered the hospital.

Biddle was a member of a distinguished Philadelphia family and a direct descendant of the first attorney general, Edmund Randolph.

Like Roosevelt, his background was Groton School and Harvard, where he won his law degree with honors.

As attorney general, Biddle was the chief prosecutor of eight German spies and saboteurs who landed from submarines on the coasts of Florida and Long Island in 1942 and were caught by the FBI. Six were executed and the others were given long prison sentences and later deported.

After the war Biddle served as the U.S. member of the International Military Tribunal that tried the principal German war leaders at Nuernberg in 1945-46. Ten were hanged.

In a report to President Harry S. Truman, Biddle said the judgments "formulated... the proposition that aggressive war is criminal, and will be so treated... Criminal acts are committed by individuals, not by those fictitious bodies known as nations, and laws, to be effective, must be applied to individuals."

Biddle was born in Paris May 9, 1886 and was brought to the United States in infancy.

He began his law career by serving a year as private secretary to Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. In 1952 he published "Mr. Justice Holmes."

In 1939 he was appointed judge of the 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals for Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and the Virgin Islands.

The following year Roosevelt named him solicitor general of the United States, and in the summer of 1941 promoted him to attorney general.

In 1918 Biddle married Katherine Gibbson Chapin. They had two sons, Garrison Chapin, deceased, and Edmund Randolph.

Mrs. Wilma A. Biddle

Mrs. Wilma A. Biddle, 71, died at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday in St. Elizabeth Hospital, where she had been a patient since May 14. She had been in failing health six years.

Born at Romney, she was a life resident of the Lafayette area, and resided at 1005 N. 6th St.

In 1927 she was married at Lafayette to Roma W. Biddle, an employee of Alcoa. He died in 1956. Mrs. Biddle was employed as a cook at Phi Kappa Theta Fraternity 23 years retiring in 1974.

She attended Miracle Bethel Church.

Surviving are a son, Robert L. Biddle of Villa Park, Ill.; and a sister, Mrs. Frances Cox of Lafayette.

McCormick Heir Estate Tax Will Total $16,000,000

Chicago (AP). — Mrs. Anita McCormick Blaine left an estate of $41,000,000 on which more than $16,000,000 in inheritance taxes are being levied, a return in the county clerk's office showed yesterday.

Mrs. Blaine, last of the children of Cyrus H. McCormick, inventor of the reaper, died Feb. 12, 1954. She was 87 years old.

Her husband, Emmons Blaine, died in 1892.

A rising stock market added more than $3,000,000 to the value of the estate since her death.

Her will specified that $20,000,000 be used to establish a foundation to work for "the betterment of life."

Of the inheritance taxes, the Federal government will get $13,000,000 and the state of Illinois $3,246,000.

Nalley-Mapes.

At half-past 8 o'clock last evening, (Wednesday,) at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Lewis, on Alabama street, near the Ford school, Mr. Lewis Nalley, the well-known painter, was united in marriage to Miss Ida Mapes, sister of Mrs. Lewis, Rev. Frost Craft performing the ceremony. The wedding was entirely private, only the immediate family being present. After an evening of social enjoyment, and the receipt of the heartfelt congratulations of their friends upon this happy union, the bride and groom repaired to their own home, corner Sixth and Columbia streets, where a suite of rooms, already fitted up, stood in readiness for their reception, and where they are now "at home" to their friends. To Mr. Nalley and his beautiful bride, the CALL begs leave, in common with their many other friends in LaFayette, to extend cordial good wishes for a long, and happy, and prosperous life.

Woman's Body Discovered

A fisherman discovered Sunday the body of a West Lafayette woman snagged on a tree in the Wabash River one mile west of Logansport State Hospital.

Identified as Alice M. Biddle, 55, of 9220 Division Road South, WL, she had been missing from the state hospital since midnight Tuesday.

Cass County sheriff's office listed the preliminary cause of death as drowning and said there were no signs of foul play. An autopsy was being conducted today to determine the actual cause of death.

According to the sheriff's office, Miss Biddle had been a patient off and on at the hospital for 17 years.

Realtor Dead At 42

Funeral services will be held in Soller-Baker Main Chapel at 10:30 a.m. today for Donald R. Biddle, 42, of 2110 S. 8th St., who was dead on arrival at Home Hospital Monday.

Rev. Dr. Joseph G. Wick will officiate and interment will be in Rest Haven Memorial Park.

A Lafayette Realtor and an associate in ABC Mobile Home Corp., Biddle reportedly had sprained his ankle last Thursday and was taking a whilpool bath treatment at Jefferson High School for the sprain. He reportedly keeled over as he stepped from the bath.

Dr. Grayson B. Davis, Tippecanoe County coroner, said preliminary investigation indicates death was caused by a pulmonary embolism (blood clot) by the injured ankle.

Mr. Biddle was born in Kokomo and was reared in Knox. He married Mary Jean Lowe in Peru in 1953. Sur survives.

He was a graduate of Knox High School and a 1954 graduate of Ball State University. He had coached basketball and football at Galveston High School and at Fensselaer Junior High School prior to moving to Lafayette from Rensselaer in 1968.

Mr. Biddle was president of Executive Realty Co. here and was secretary of Executive Homes Corp., in addition to his affiliation with the mobile home firm.

He was past president of the Lafayette Home Builders Association and was a member of the John Purdue Club, Elks Club, Masonic Lodge of Rensselaer and Lafayette Country Club. He was an Army veteran. Mr. Biddle was an avid golfer and sports fan.

Surviving with his wife are two sons, Michael and Rick, both at home; his mother, Mrs. Helen J. Biddle of Monticello, and one stepbrother, Steve Biddle, Monticello.

The date on the marker in Lane cemetary in Smithson, just outside of Reynolds is Sarah Biddle D. Aug. 7, 1871,65yrs 9 mo 21 days. The type paper I got from the courthouse in Monticello says 1851. Its a typical mistake.. The marker,the stone, is correct.. That would make it our Sarah Underwood Biddle the "2nd. great grandmother, wife of the Dr. William George Biddle. She was born in 1805 in Penn. Also other members of the family are also burried there. I don't think that there is any doubt.

New York - Long Island

Settlements was begun simultaneously at North Sea, Sagabonack and Southampton in the beginning of the settlement and at a time when there were but a few families & constant fear of the Indians they would venture to scatter their numbers so widely. The first permanent one, after the one at Southampton, was at North Sea in 1647, when John Ogden received permission from the town to settle there with six families, who were to have 321 acres of land, & were to form a community by themselves upon certain conditions agreed upon. No settlement appears to have been made at Sagabonack till some time after this, when various persons owning land there began to build. In 1670 there was quite a settlement upon the east side of Sagabonack pond, (whence the present village of Sagg derives its name) and along the shores of Mecox Bay. However it would appear from the following order that North Sea was not settled till 1649

Feb. 21 1649 It is granted by the Major parte of this towne that Mr. Ogden and his company shall have Cow Neck and Jeffery Neck contin:

for there owne proper rights; also that they shall have for their planting land within or without ye said necks three hundred 24 acres of said land provided they sufficiently fence it and upon the same grant they are to have all the meadow betwixt the brook by the Sachem Stroake and Hogneck Spring for there proper Right provided it bee not above.

In 1679 Meacox is spoken of as "lately layed" out to the inhabitants & in 1680. Hogneck to be soon devided –

The names of the eight original "undertakers", are: Edward Howell, Edmond Farrington, Edmund Needham, Thomas Sayre, Josiah Stanborough, George Welbe, Henry Walton, Job Sayre, and the Captain of the Vessel, Daniel Howe making nine.

Hillsville -

A man named Dorat was probably the first settler on the ground where Hillsville stands He sold the land to Peter or Abraham Hoover & finally become the property of John Hill. who laid out the town Oct 15, 1824 & called it Hillsburg. & since changed to Hillsville. It is generally called "Hill Town" — Mr. Hill was a tailor - kept the first tailor shop. - First house built put up by Mc Gowan. Mc Gown kept the first store in his house. Mr. Moss kept the second one in the same house. — Some time before the town was laid out a log school house was built ½ mile South. First blacksmith by Christopher Rummel. first Wagon Shop. George Sell. about 1830-32 David Stevens first shoemaker.

David Stevens first post-master next James Caldwell David Mc Bride, David McCreary, William Duff, William Mitchell, Chauncy Meeker, Jacob Burke & others. William Gilmore present postmaster & general merchant.

The Methodist Episcopal Society Organized about 1820 & Church built of logs about the time the town as laid out (1824) It stood on a lot given by John Zriver.

VILLAGE OF CHESTERFIELD, NEW JERSEY

The Village of Chesterfield, formerly called Recklesstown, was named in honor of Joseph Reckless, First Generation, who was an early settler and ran a mill. The Village is located in the center of the Township. The name, Recklesstown, was changed by Anthony Bullock who served in the U. S. Congress during the 1880s.

There is a story told by Thomas Ridgeway, former resident of Chesterfield, to Henry Beck, author of "More forgotten towns in Southern New Jersey," that relates to how the name was changed:

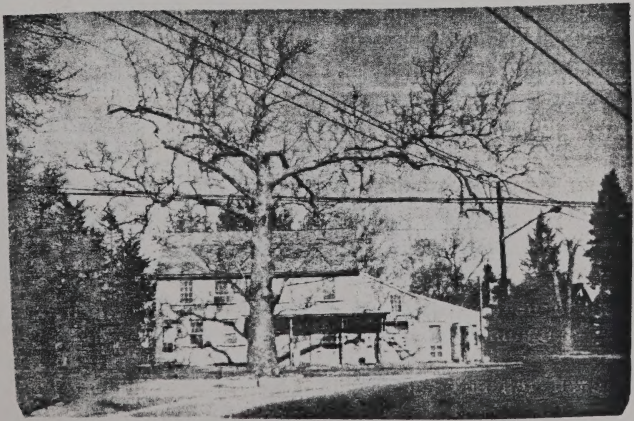
> "Anthony Bullock, who lived across the way here, was the fellow who had most to do with the dropping of the name Recklesstown. Bullock was a rich man, with many friends in Washington. I think it was Colonel Stone, of Pennsylvania, who said to him one day, "Why don't you change the name of that town of yours? That 'reckless' part of it sounds ridiculous."

Descriptions from the New Jersey Gazatteer of 1834, offer some helpful information of what Recklesstown was like:

> "Recklesstown, post town of Chesterfield t-ship, Burlington Co., 12 miles N.E. of Mount Holly, 5 S.E. of Bordentown, 11 from Trenton, and 177 from Washington Capital; contains one tavern, a store and 10 or 11 dwellings, in a very fertile country of sandy loam."

Today, as in the olden days, it hasn't changed much, it still contains a tavern (the Chesterfield Inn), now has two stores instead of one, and about 25 or more dwellings and also houses the Township Municipal Building, Bank of Mid-Jersey and the Green Acres beauty salon.

One of the unusual features of Chesterfield is the Buttonwood Tree, that stands in the middle of the roadway, halfway between the store and the Chesterfield Inn (was the old hotel). The tree has been there for more than a century and a story about the tree follows.



The Buttonwood tree today(1978)

That story told by Mr. Ridgeway to Mr. Beck, relative to this tree is that "It was being planted when they heard about Joe Clough stabbing Mrs. Hamilton, down in Bordentown." This seemed to have been a rather famous murder of the times. Mr. Ridgeway's grandfather served as foreman of the Grand Jury at the trial which followed and he recalled the details rather graphically.

Clough was an Irishman who came to Bordentown as the foreman on the railroad line then going through. He was infatuated with Mrs. Hamilton, who was a widow and seemed to have had a number of admirers in the neighborhood at the time. One of these was Jim Lippincott, of Recklesstown--and that's where the Buttonwood tree comes in.

"Lippincott was helping plant that tree. A bottle of whiskey was placed beneath it in the accepted tree-planting style. Then word came of the murder. Naturally, since he was personally interested, Lippincott went to Bordentown at once to learn the details. Clough had killed his sweetheart in a jealous rage. But from that day, speculation and rumors as to whether or not Jim Lippincott's bottle stayed under the tree when he went away is another matter. Some say he drank down the contents when he heard the news and tossed a 'dead soldier' among the roots before walking away."

Postal operations in Recklesstown began on Feb. 20, 1830, under James Wonderly. The building was located on the site adjacent to the Chesterfield General Store. In 1926 the building was sold and moved to the farm of Walter Emery who used it as his milk house.

On the following page are photographs of the building as it is today. It is no longer in use.

ARNEYTOWN, N. J.

Arneytown, New Jersey, is located in North Hanover Township, near the Monmouth County line, about four miles east of Chesterfield, and two miles north of Jacobstown.

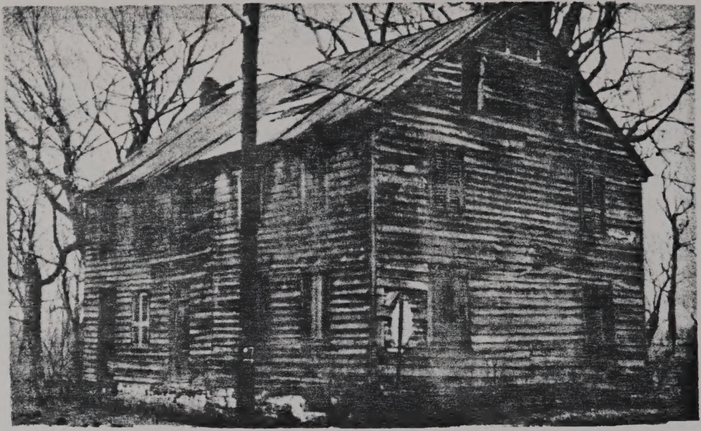
Very little history is written about Arneytown itself, writers have mentioned the village or town in passing remarks, when writing of other villages and towns in New Jersey. It has been said that the town was named after Arney Lippincott. Others have denied this and said that it was named after John Arney. There are about only three houses now standing. One family still living there is Mr. & Mrs. Harley Grover, another is Dr. and Mrs. Calvin Moon, who is a veterinarian.

Arneytown has long since lost its meetinghouse and brickworks. The post office has long since closed but as small as the town was, it did have its own at one time.

It was established April 24, 1827, and the first postmaster was William Lawrie who served until his resignation on Jan. 24, 1843. He was appointed by Postmaster General John McLean, who served during the administration's of both Presidents James Monroe and John Quincy Adams.

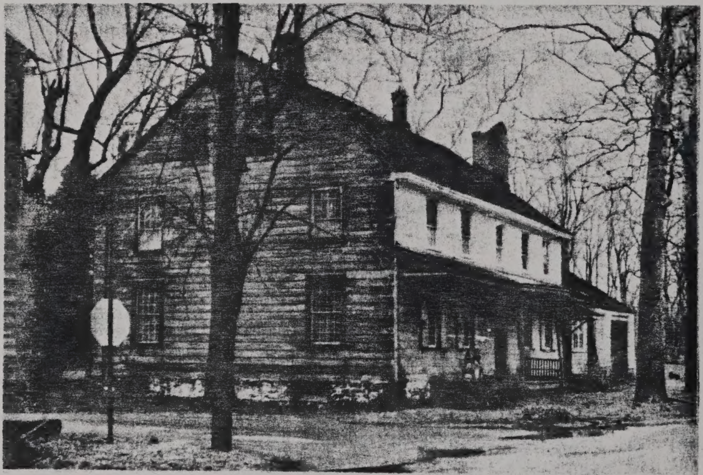
After Mr. Lawrie resigned, Mr. John Darby was appointed by Postmaster General Charles A. Wickliffe who served under President John Tyler. Mr. Darby was also the village shoemaker and grave digger. He served until the post office was discontinued on Feb. 8, 1871.

Arneytown as it appeared in 1937



A house similiar to this was the post office during Mr. William Lawrie's tenure as postmaster of Arneytown. All that remains is the foundation. It stood to the right of the Grover's house.

Arneytown name after John Arney



Thos. Wright lived Recklestown

The home of Mr. & Mrs. Harley Grover (photo 1977) was at one time one of the Arneytown post offices. In talking with Mr. Harley Grover, he showed the photographer exactly where in house that portion was used as the post office. Mr. Grover clearly indicated where the shelf was located on which the mail was sorted and stored when Mr. Darby was the postmaster. The photo of the house is located on Provinceline Road, north side in Arneytown.

The home of Mr. & Mrs. Harley Grover (photo 1977) was at one time one of the Arraytown post offices. In talking with Mr. Harley Grover, he showed the photographer exactly where in the house that portion was used as the post office. Mr. Grover clearly indicated where the shelf was located on which the mail was sorted and stored when Mr. [illegible] was the postmaster. The photo of the house is located on [illegible] Road, north side in Arraytown.

> hour, which said conclusion of ye Yearly Meeting ye Friends of this meeting are satisfied with.
> "JOHN CURTIS, Clerk.
> "29 of 9 mo, 1681."

Burlington Monthly Meeting comprised the Particular Meetings held at Shackamaxon and Chester, Pa., Rancocas, and Friends situated about the Falls, Hoarkills, and Newcastle, also those on Long Island, who in 1681 "desired to be considered members of this Monthly Meeting."

In 1680, Burlington Monthly Meeting addressed to London Yearly Meeting the epistle received by them from Friends in America. It is quoted at length in Bowden's "History of Friends in America," page 402. In 1682, Christopher Taylor and Samuel Jennings were appointed to draw up an answer to a letter received from George Fox inquiring as to the state of the meeting. His reply was written and "left with Samuel Jennings to send it safe to George Fox, and was directed to John Bringhurst, at ye Book in Gracious[1] Street, London." Several other epistles were also received from George Fox, three of the original copies, bearing date respectively 1675, 1677, and 1682, being now in possession. They are addressed to "Thomas Olive, William Peachee, and William Cooper, to be disperst abroad among Friends."

The meeting began at this time to grow very rapidly, and soon assumed its largest proportions. There are some interestingly quaint minor details noticed in the minutes, as for instance: "Peter Woolwet is willing to make Graves. . . . and Friends are willing to see him paid an old English shilling for such mens or womens graves, yt may not be paid for by ye persons yt employ him." Bernard Davenish in 1689 and James Satterthwaite in 1695 succeeded to the position of sexton. The Quarterly Meeting records in 1681 have notice of an interesting meeting with the Indians by means of a native interpreter.

A statement presented by William Dockwra to the Lords of Trade, sitting at Whitehall, London, dated September, 1699, states the number of freeholders in West Jersey to be eight hundred and thirty-two, whereof two hundred and sixty-six are Quakers, and adds that "the Quakers are more numerous in Burlington County than in all the other countys." (See New Jersey Archives, vol. ii. p. 305.)

In consequence of this increase in numbers, Friends began to build meeting-houses in other parts, and with permission and aid of Burlington established separate meetings. These were respectively at (1) Springfield, (2) Rancocas, (3) Mount Holly, (4) Shrewsbury, (5) Trenton, and (6) Crosswicks.

Of course many by this time had arrived who were not Friends. These were chiefly of the Church of England. The Rev. John Talbot, with George Keith (a Separatist who was in 1692 disowned by Philadelphia Monthly Meeting), viewed the increasing number of Friends with great intolerance, in consideration of their peaceable behavior. The former was rector of St. Mary's parish; the latter, having joined the church, was returned by the "Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts" as their first American missionary. The controversy raised by them was allowed to pass unnoticed by Friends, who quietly declined to reply to their hot attacks. Friends were shortly after granted permission by Governor Robert Hunter to affirm instead of taking the usual oaths.

In 1729 steps were taken, by appealing to the Assembly, to have the evil effect of fairs remedied. These had been instituted in 1701 by law, and were held quarterly, the market days in West Jersey being Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays. Each fair continued for six days, and was regarded of sufficient importance to warrant the adjournment of Monthly Meeting on that account. The last instance of this action, which continued for many years, is noticed in eighth month, 1741. At this time thirty and forty representatives were frequently sent to attend the Yearly Meeting.

An interesting little building has recently been demolished, which deserves some passing notice as having had valuable associations. This is the small English-brick building once standing near the corner of Pearl, on High Street. It was the office of Samuel Jennings, Governor of the province and Speaker of the Assembly. The first Continental money of New Jersey was afterwards printed there, and in 1765 Smith's "History of New Jersey" was also published at the same place. Isaac Collins (who in 1770 became king's printer) made it his office, and before the school-house was finished in York Street it was temporarily occupied for the purposes of a school.

The outbreak of the Revolution brought great disturbances on the peaceable community. The occupation of Philadelphia by Gen. Howe, in 1777, prevented access to that place, and property of all sorts was confiscated. The meeting-houses at Burlington and Trenton were occupied by the militia, and much destruction of goods and estate followed the quartering of troops at those places.

The record at that time of the number of members in Burlington Monthly Meeting and the Particular Meetings composing it is as follows, viz.:

Burlington Particular Meeting	193
Old Springfield	106
Rancocas	133
Upper Springfield	5
Mansfield	90
Mansfield Neck	60
Total	587

The uneventful history of Burlington Meeting during the present century requires little comment. The war of 1812 made some disturbance, but far less than the previous great struggle. Schools were carefull maintained by Friends, and many able teachers have been among those employed in them. The marriages in Burlington up to the present date have been regularly recorded, and it is to be regretted that no authentic list of the ministers of that meeting is obtainable.

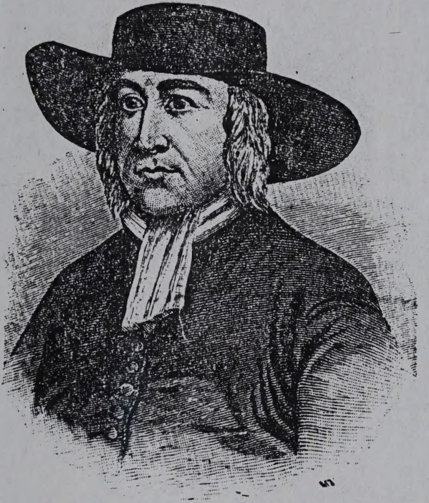
George Fox was "born in the month called July," then the fifth month, old style, in the year 1624, at Drayton-in-the-Clay, now called Fenny Drayton, Leicestershire, England. His father was a weaver by trade, an upright man noted for his probity, and his mother a pious woman, sprung from the stock of the martyrs, and "accomplished above most of her degree in the place where she lived." They were members of the Established Church, and endeavored to educate their children in conformity with its doctrines and mode of worship. From his childhood George "appeared to be of another frame of mind than the rest of his brethren, being more religious, inward, still, solid, and serving," as appeared by the answers he would give, and the questions he would ask in relation to divine things. He abstained from the sports of childhood; was treated with great tenderness by his parents, who encouraged his serious deportment and pious disposition. His school education was limited, but it appears that he learned in youth "to read pretty well and to write sufficiently to convey his meaning to others." Some of his relatives observing his serious deportment wished that he should be educated for a priest, a term then applied to ministers of the Established Church, but others advised a different course, and finally it was concluded to place him with a man who was by trade a shoemaker, who dealt in wool and kept sheep. During a part of his minority George was employed as a shepherd, a business well adapted to his contemplative spirit, and, as William Penn observes, was "a fit emblem of his future service in the church of Christ." Being impelled by a sense of duty to withdraw from the companionship of men, in the year 1643 he left his relatives, and traveled to Lutterworth and Northampton, making some stay in those places, and thence passing on he arrived in Buckinghamshire the following year. During this journey he kept aloof from all society, sometimes seeking retirement in his chamber, and often walking in the fields or in the chase to wait upon the Lord. At this time he was subjected to much mental suffering through deep religious exercise, for although he had led a life of remarkable purity he found within himself a conflict between the powers of light and of darkness, he was assailed by strong temptations, and the enemy of his soul rose like a flood to overwhelm him. At this time he read the Scriptures diligently, and prayed for divine aid to open their hidden treasures.



GEORGE FOX.

Proceeding on his journey he came to London in the year 1644, at which time the city was the focus of intense excitement concerning religion and government. The celebrated Long Parliament and the Westminster Assembly of divines were both in session. Having driven the king from his capital and overthrown the hierarchy of the Anglican Church, they were now engaged in framing another system of church government and civil polity. The Presbyterians were the most powerful of the Puritan sects, were exceedingly zealous in their religious exercises, and so rigid in their principles that they resorted to coercive means for the suppression of what they called heresy, and accordingly passed persecuting laws. The Baptists were then the most tolerant of the prominent sects, and George Fox found tenderness of feeling among them, but could not join them in religious profession. He soon after returned home at the solicitation of his distressed relatives; was advised by some to become a soldier, by others to marry, both of which propositions grieved him. He remained about home for a year, during which time he had many conferences with ministers, but failed to receive the consolation sought for. After a time he ceased to attend the parish church, which displeased his relatives, but he showed them from the Scriptures that there was an anointing within man to teach him, and that the Lord would teach his people himself. "Having removed to another place he found a people who relied much upon dreams. He told them that unless 'they could distinguish between dream and dream they would confound all together, for there are three sorts of dreams: multitude of business sometimes caused dreams, and there were the whisperings of Satan in man in the night season, and there were speakings of God in man in dreams.' These people afterwards advanced in religious experience and became Friends." He was led by a sense of duty to travel to various points, where he met friendly and religious people. He fasted much, walked abroad in solitary places, sat in hollow trees and secluded places, reading his Bible. Thus he grew in knowledge of divine things, not by a reliance upon any man, book, or writing, "but through the operation of divine grace in the soul." The long and painful exercises through which he was passing were designed by Infinite Wisdom to qualify him for the work of the ministry, to which he was called by the Great Head of the church in the year 1647. His communications at first were short, but impressive and powerful, and his chief concern was to call their attention to the word or spirit of God manifested in the soul, which he usually designated by the expressive scriptural term, "the true light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world."

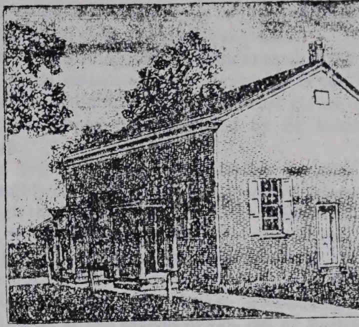
During the years 1647 and 1648 in many places meetings of Friends were gathered, who were led to relinquish their dependence on outward observances, and to receive with gladness the message of George Fox, that "Jesus Christ teaches his people himself through the influence of his light, spirit, and power." The effect of his preaching was so great that many ministers of note became able coadjutors with him, and large meetings of Friends were established in various parts of the kingdom, numbering about forty thousand members. He held meetings at private houses, by the roadside, on the hill-top, or on the rocks, as well as traveled in Holland, Germany, and America, exhorting people to "mind the light within." He was frequently imprisoned for uttering what he believed to be the truth. At other times he was stoned, beaten with clubs and Bibles, placed in stocks, and sometimes committed to houses of correction. He has left a journal, which, with many papers on religious topics, are highly valued by Friends and others. William Penn, who was long and intimately acquainted with him, in his writings says, "He was a man that God endowed with a clear and wonderful depth, a discerner of others' spirits, and very much the master of his own. And his ministry and writings show they are from one that was not taught of man, nor had learned what he said by study. He had an extraordinary gift in opening the Scriptures, but above all he excelled in prayer. The inwardness and weight of his spirit, the reverence and solemnity of his address and behavior, and the fewness and fullness of his words have often struck even strangers with admiration, as they used to reach others with consolation. Thousands can truly say he was of an excellent spirit and savor among them, and because thereof the most excellent spirits loved him with an unfeigned and unfading love." He died on the 13th of the 11th month, 1690, being then in the sixty-seventh year of his age, having been a minister over forty years.

Burlington Friends' Meeting.—In most Friends' Meetings after 1827 there was a separation; such was not the case with Burlington, as nearly all the members remained with the Orthodox branch. After a time, however, a few Friends rented the old cocoonery then standing on East Union Street, about where the Methodist Church now stands, until in 1845 the present convenient brick edifice was built on Main Street. John Parrish and Lydia P. Mott were ministers.



FRIENDS' MEETING HOUSE, 1845.

Among those who were members may be noted Thomas Zell, Thomas Hopkins, Dr. Chas. Ridgway, Empsom Haines, and Uriah Costell, who with their families and others made the meeting number about forty. The meeting is now small.

St. Mary's Church.—On the 13th of July, 1695, "several persons in and about Burlington, together with John Tatham, Edward Hunloke, and Nathaniel Westland," bought a piece of land on Wood Street, near Broad, for a "Christian burying-ground." On the 16th of September, 1702, this ground was enlarged, and the whole fenced in. On the 29th of October the missionaries, Keith and Talbot, reached Burlington. Keith's "Journal" says,—

> "November 1, Sunday. We preached at the Town-House, at Burlington (the Church not being then built), and we had a great Auditory of diverse sorts, some of the Church, and some of the late Converts from Quakerism. Mr. Talbot preached before Noon, and I in the afternoon. My text was John xvii. 3. Col. Hamilton, then Governor of West Jersey, was present both Forenoon and Afternoon, and at his Invitation, we dined with him.
> "Feb. 21, Sunday, 1702. I preached at Burlington, in West Jersey, on Rom. x. 7, 8, 9 and, Feb. 22. I baptized the wife of Mr. Rob. Wheeler and his three children and five others: in all, 9 persons. He and his wife had been Quakers, but are come over to the Church."

On the 6th of March the land adjoining the "Christian burying-ground" on the south, being the lot on the corner of Wood and Broad Streets, was bought by Nathaniel Westland, Robert Wheeler, and Hugh Huddy, as "ffeoffees in trust for the erecting of a Church and other buildings, as occasion may serve for Charitable uses," "for the Sum of Twenty Pounds of Currant Silver money within the Province."

On the 3d of May, 1703, Mr. Talbot writes: "I was at Burlington last Lady day, and after prayers we went to the Ground where they were going to build a Church, and I laid the first stone, which I hope will be none other than the House of God and Gate of Heaven to the People. Coll. Nicholson, Governor here, was the 1848, by act of the Legislature, the island managers were combined jointly with the public school trustees for all general school purposes for District No. 1, within the bounds of the city—managers seven, trustees seven,—but in matters pertaining to the control of the island the managers act by themselves, turning over all proceeds to the public schools, and so save taxation in the district named. Most of the State school districts are taxed to erect school buildings, but by the generous gift of Mr. Stacy, District No. 1 has been saved this expense, except in the case of the colored school, for which a tax of three thousand dollars was laid.

The Stacy Street school building, owned by the city, was erected about forty years ago. Ten years later the island managers erected the St. Mary's Street building, costing six thousand dollars, and some fourteen years since the managers paid two thousand five hundred dollars for the Federal Street building for colored children. About 1878 the island managers erected the York Street public school building at a cost of six thousand dollars.

In 1853 the Legislature authorized the island managers to sell the south half of the island. It brought at public sale over twenty thousand one hundred dollars, Elias Boudinot, Charles Lippincott, and J. P. Fireng and others being among the highest bidders. The following year these parties formed the Matinicunk or Burlington Island Land Association. The association paid ten thousand one hundred dollars down and gave a mortgage for balance, which proceeds the managers have invested on the Hays and Gardiner farms. The interest is paid to March 25, 1881.

In November, 1881, there being no tenant, the managers commenced foreclosure proceedings. The property was going to waste, and the principal and interest were in danger. In February last, however, by mutual agreement between the managers and a Mr. Brock, of Philadelphia, representing the Island Loan Association (who as president thereof had conveyed the title to Mr. Evans, of the same city), the latter paid one thousand dollars on the principal of ten thousand dollars, and six hundred dollars interest up to March 29, 1882, leaving in the hands of the managers nine thousand dollars in bonds on the southwest half of the island.

The island managers are elected by the people from the best representative men. They give their time and labor gratuitously for the public welfare of our city, in the growth and advancement of our free schools, and yet but few people are aware of the work and care taken by these gentlemen. The present board is constituted as follows: Hon. Caleb G. Ridgway, president; John McNeal, John Broomhead, Richard F. Mott, George Rigg, Elwood Conner, and Henry Hollemback. George Watts is secretary and treasurer.

The establishment of free schools in Burlington was, as has been seen, nearly contemporary with the beginning of its civilization. History and tradition both bear honorable record of the teachers of an early date. "The names of Rowland Ellis, Staughton, the Hanckels, and Pike," and later those of William Lowden, William F. Smith, Davis, and others are recalled as those of "principals of high scholastic attainments and thorough disciplinarians."

The only building now standing to remind the resident of the schools of the early period is the "old free school building" on the northeast corner of St. Mary and Broad Streets, owned by St. Barnabas' Church.

The present public school system, so ably and thoroughly conducted, was organized in 1856, mainly through the instrumentality of John Griscom, LL.D., with the co-operation of Hon. Thomas Milner, William R. Allen, Thomas Dutton, and others.

Since 1867, Mr. Wilbur Watts, a native of Burlington, has discharged the onerous and responsible duties of principal of the schools of the city of Burlington and of the boys' grammar school to the satisfaction of all classes. The other schools of the city and township are in charge of able and experienced instructors.

The township of Burlington is divided into four school districts, under the public school laws of the State, known as "Union District, No. 1," "Irick District, No. 2," "Mitchell District, No. 3," and "Oakland District, No. 4." The statistics of these several districts, from the last published report of the State Board of Education (1880), are as follows:

Union District.—Amount received from all sources for public school purposes, $5869.03; value of school property, $31,000; number of children of the school age, 1700; number of teachers employed, 1 male and 13 females; salary of male $100 per month, salary of females (average) $40 per month.

Irick District.—Amount received from all sources for public school purposes, $382.26; value of school property, $1000; number of children of the school age, 114; number of teachers employed, 1 male; salary, $40 per month.

Mitchell District.—Amount received from all sources for public school purposes, $300; value of school property, $2500; number of children of the school age, 100; number of teachers employed, 1 female; salary, $33 per month.

Oakland District.—Amount received from all sources for public school purposes, $300; value of school property, $400; number of children of the school age, 60; number of teachers employed, 1 male; salary, $30.44 per month.

RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS.

Friends in Burlington.—The settlement of Burlington having been effected by Friends, their history in West New Jersey is largely dependent upon the records of that meeting. These have been kept with wonderful care and accuracy considering the disadvantages of the situation in early years. Burlington and Salem, intimately connected in their early history, are the oldest settlements on the east banks of the Delaware.

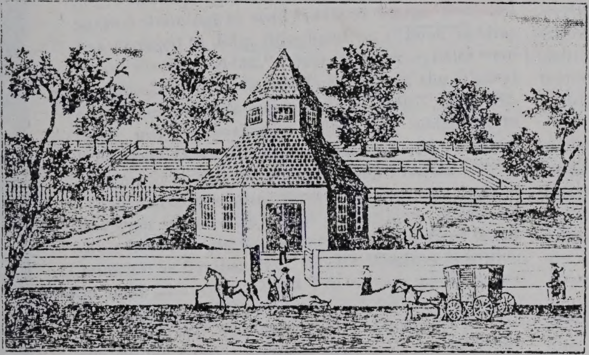
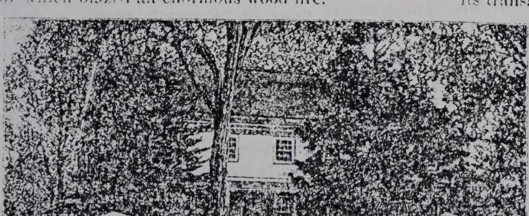
The company of Friends landing at the former place from the ship "Kent" in 1677 comprised two hundred and thirty Quakers, half of whom were from Yorkshire, the rest Londoners. Their first gatherings for worship were under one of the ship's sails used as a tent. As houses were built they met at each other's dwellings, and then in a house on what is now Broad Street, adapted by alterations for the purpose. In 1682 proceedings were begun for a new meeting-house, exclusively for purposes of worship, the contractor for the building being Francis Collings. Upon its completion in 1685 it was discovered to be too cold for use in winter; consequently five years later (1690) they made a brick addition capable of being warmed from a large fireplace, on the hearth of which blazed an enormous wood fire.



FRIENDS' MEETING-HOUSE, 1683.



FRIENDS' MEETING-HOUSE, 1785.

The original structure was a remarkable affair, an ancient painting done at the time representing it as hexagonal in form, with the roof of a steep pitch, surmounted by a sort of cupola, corresponding in shape with the main building. It was of frame, the site being nearly the same as that of the present one on High Street, except that it stood slightly farther west and south. The house remained untouched for one hundred years, when in 1785 the present brick building was erected immediately in front of the old one, and the material in the original employed in putting up the school-house on York Street, the property of the Preparative Meeting.

The first entry on the books of the meeting runs as follows, viz.:

> "Since by the good providence of God, many Friends with their families have transported themselves into this province of West Jersey, the said Friends in these upper parts have found it needful, according to the practice in the place we came from, to settle Monthly Meetings for the well-ordering of the affairs of the church; it was agreed that accordingly it should be done, and accordingly it was done the 15th of 5 mo. 1678."

Yearly and Quarterly Meetings were soon established, the first annual gathering being at the house of Thomas Gardiner, 28th of 6th month, 1681. It opened with the title, "A General Yearly Meeting held for Friends of Pennsylvania, East and West Jerseys, and of the Adjacent Provinces." Until the new meeting-house was finished the meeting continued to be held at the same place. Thomas Gardiner died in 1694. He held several positions of trust in the province, and was a valuable member of the community. The exact location of his house is uncertain; it was probably on High Street above Broad. About 1690 the Yearly Meeting began to be held at Burlington and Philadelphia alternately, and in 1760 it was permanently transferred to the latter place. The first meeting referred to occupied four days with its transactions, and was adjourned to meet in seventh month of the following year.

For many years the Quarterly Meeting was held at the house of William Biddle (frequently written Beedle), probably until about 1711. After that date it met alternately at Burlington and Chesterfield until 1827. William Biddle's house was at Mount Hope, near what is now Kinkora, and as Friends were widely separated, many of them were obliged to travel very long distances in order to attend. The transactions of the first Quarterly Meeting are recorded with the following preamble:

> "WHEREAS, the Yearly Meeting saw it necessary yt there should be Quarterly Meetings kept in several places in this Province of West New Jersey; and yt this Quarterly Meeting of Friends for Burlington and ye Falls should be held at the house of William Beedle in Mansfield (being pretty near ye middle of Friends belonging to it) at ye times hereafter mentioned, viz. upon the last second day of the 9 mo; last second day of ye 12 mo; last second day of ye 3 mo, and ye last second day of ye 6 mo. and to begin at ye 1[illegible] hour, which said conclusion of yᵉ Yearly Meeting yᵉ Friends of this meeting are satisfied with.

Burlington Monthly Meeting comprised the Particular Meetings held at Shackamaxon and Chester, Pa., Rancocas, and Friends situated about the Falls, Hoarkills, and Newcastle, also those on Long Island, who in 1681 "desired to be considered members of this Monthly Meeting."

In 1680, Burlington Monthly Meeting addressed to London Yearly Meeting the epistle received by them from Friends in America. It is quoted at length in Bowden's "History of Friends in America," page 402. In 1682, Christopher Taylor and Samuel Jennings were appointed to draw up an answer to a letter received from George Fox inquiring as to the state of the meeting. His reply was written and "left with Samuel Jennings to send it safe to George Fox, and was directed to John Bringhurst, at yᵉ Book in Gracious[1] Street, London." Several other epistles were also received from George Fox, three of the original copies, bearing date respectively 1675, 1677, and 1682, being now in possession. They are addressed to "Thomas Olive, William Peachee, and William Cooper, to be disperst abroad among Friends."

The meeting began at this time to grow very rapidly, and soon assumed its largest proportions. There are some interestingly quaint minor details noticed in the minutes, as for instance: "Peter Woolwet is willing to make Graves. . . . and Friends are willing to see him paid an old English shilling for such mens or womens graves, yt may not be paid for by ye persons yt employ him." Bernard Davenish in 1689 and James Satterthwaite in 1695 succeeded to the position of sexton. The Quarterly Meeting records in 1681 have notice of an interesting meeting with the Indians by means of a native interpreter.

A statement presented by William Dockwra to the Lords of Trade, sitting at Whitehall, London, dated September, 1699, states the number of freeholders in West Jersey to be eight hundred and thirty-two, whereof two hundred and sixty-six are Quakers, and adds that "the Quakers are more numerous in Burlington County than in all the other countys." (See New Jersey Archives, vol. ii. p. 305.)

In consequence of this increase in numbers, Friends began to build meeting-houses in other parts, and with permission and aid of Burlington established separate meetings. These were respectively at (1) Springfield, (2) Rancocas, (3) Mount Holly, (4) Shrewsbury, (5) Trenton, and (6) Crosswicks.

Of course many by this time had arrived who were not Friends. These were chiefly of the Church of England. The Rev. John Talbot, with George Keith (a Separatist who was in 1692 disowned by Philadelphia Monthly Meeting), viewed the increasing number of Friends with great intolerance, in consideration of their peaceable behavior. The former was rector of St. Mary's parish; the latter, having joined the church, was returned by the "Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts" as their first American missionary. The controversy raised by them was allowed to pass unnoticed by Friends, who quietly declined to reply to their hot attacks. Friends were shortly after granted permission by Governor Robert Hunter to affirm instead of taking the usual oaths.

In 1729 steps were taken, by appealing to the Assembly, to have the evil effect of fairs remedied. These had been instituted in 1701 by law, and were held quarterly, the market days in West Jersey being Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays. Each fair continued for six days, and was regarded of sufficient importance to warrant the adjournment of Monthly Meeting on that account. The last instance of this action, which continued for many years, is noticed in eighth month, 1741. At this time thirty and forty representatives were frequently sent to attend the Yearly Meeting.

An interesting little building has recently been demolished, which deserves some passing notice as having had valuable associations. This is the small English-brick building once standing near the corner of Pearl, on High Street. It was the office of Samuel Jennings, Governor of the province and Speaker of the Assembly. The first Continental money of New Jersey was afterwards printed there, and in 1765 Smith's "History of New Jersey" was also published at the same place. Isaac Collins (who in 1770 became king's printer) made it his office, and before the school-house was finished in York Street it was temporarily occupied for the purposes of a school.

The outbreak of the Revolution brought great disturbances on the peaceable community. The occupation of Philadelphia by Gen. Howe, in 1777, prevented access to that place, and property of all sorts was confiscated. The meeting-houses at Burlington and Trenton were occupied by the militia, and much destruction of goods and estate followed the quartering of troops at those places.

The record at that time of the number of members in Burlington Monthly Meeting and the Particular Meetings composing it is as follows, viz.:

Burlington Particular Meeting	193
Old Springfield	166
Rancocas	[illegible]
Upper Springfield	5
Mansfield	50
Mansfield Neck	50
Total	587

The uneventful history of Burlington Meeting during the present century requires little comment. The war of 1812 made some disturbance, but far less than the previous great struggle. Schools were carefull maintained by Friends, and many able teachers have been among those employed in them. The mar

To the Chancellor-Commander, Vice-Chanceilor, officers and members of Riverside Lodge, K. of P., No. 49.

The Committee of Condolence in the case of our deceased and honored brother, Henry White, have prepared and hereby respectfully present the following resolutions:

Resolved, That in the death of our brother and Past-Chancellor, Henry White, of Lower Penn's Neck, Salem County, N. J., we have lost a very worthy and useful member of the lodge.

Resolved, That we lament the loss of this deceased brother, whose character and excellent qualities as an officer of the society will long be remembered by his brethren.

Resolved, That we sincerely sympathize with his widow and orphans in the loss that they sustained by the death of a kind husband and father.

Resolved, That we petition our Heavenly Father that He bestow upon his widow and orphans such help and comfort as they need in this sad bereavement.

Resolved, That these resolutions be transmitted to the Chancellor-Commander in writing, and that he be requested to present the same to the widowed sister

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in both of the weekly publications of Salem.

BALLES.—In this city, on the 2d inst., Elizabeth D., wife of Jacob Balles, aged 45 years.

On Friday evening, 2d inst., Samuel Craig, the oldest citizen of our village, died very suddenly. He had been very feeble for some time, owing to his great age, but it was not noticed that he was any worse until after he had retired to bed. His wife hearing him make a strange noise, jumped up and got a light, and found something unusual the matter, and ran across the street and called a neighbor, but on returning to the bedside he was dead. Mr. Craig was in the 84th year of his age, and was a veteran of the war of 1812. He was buried at the cemetery of the Presbyterian church at Daretown, and his remains were followed by a large concourse of relatives and friends. W.

The grave-stone of T. Seeds in the cemetery connected with the Camden county almshouse shows that he lived in three centuries. He was born in 1697 and died in 1806, thus having lived in the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries. It is doubtful if a parallel can be found in the State, if in the country.

A Parallel Case.

MR. EDITOR: In your issue of last week you have an item which states that T. Seeds, buried in the almshouse cemetery at Blackwoodtown lived in three centuries, the 17th, 18th and 19th. A doubt is expressed whether another case can be found in the State or county. Now, sir, you need not doubt any longer; I have a parallel. In the History of Methodism in New Jersey, by John Atkinson, a native of Salem county, in the last chapter you will find the case of Ann Hutchinson, who died January 4th, 1801, aged 101 years, 9 months and 7 days. She was, therefore, born March 28th, 1699, so that she lived in the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries. She left 375 children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, &c. The celebrated Rev. Sylvester Hutchinson, who helped to lay the foundation of Methodism in Salem county, was one of her family, and the wife of Rev. J. B. Turpin, now in this county, is one of her descendants. It is a common thing in the family to refer to the fact that Mother Hutchinson lived in three centuries. T.

Callahan, the manufacturer, at the residence of the bride's parents, in Angora. The Rev. John E. Craig, pastor of the Angora Baptist Church, officiated at the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. George Anderson. The Rev. Walter Calley, pastor of the Lehigh Avenue Baptist Church, acted as best man, and Miss Ida Callahan, a sister of the bride, as bridesmaid. A reception followed the ceremony, large number of friends from Philadelphia being present. Among these were the Rev: Charles F. Williams, of the Spring Garden Baptist Church, the Rev. Byron A. Woods and wife, T. J. Hoskinson and wife, the Rev. J. J. Muir and wife, the Rev. J. Wesley Sullivan, of the Synder Avenue Baptist Church, the Rev. Dr. Weston, President of the Crozier Theological Seminary, the Rev. W. D. Tolan, the Rev. Benjamin Griffith, the Rev. Perry Anderson and Professor H. J. Keely.

Dr. William Elmer, Sr., of Bridgeton, died at his home in that city, on Thursday, after a lingering illness. He was born in Bridgeton in 1814, graduated at Princeton in 1832, entered the University of Pennsylvania and graduated in the department of law in 1836. After spending a couple of years in the Blockley Hospital he returned to Bridgeton and resumed the practice of his profession, which he continued down to the time of his last illness. He was one of the most distinguished physicians in the State, and practiced continuously for 53 years. He was a director of the State Lunatic Asylum and the Home for Feeble-minded Children at Vineland. He was President of the Cumberland County Bible Society, County Board of Organized Charity and board of trustees of the West Jersey Academy.

The twentieth anniversary of the Memorial Baptist Church, this city, was celebrated on Sunday last. The pastor, Rev. D. Dewolf, preached an excellent sermon in the morning on "What to remember and what to forget." In the evening he gave a complete history of the church from its origin to the present time, stating that the present church property cost $19,348.28. In the first five years the church raised nearly $28,000 for various objects. The church organized with seventy-two members. Eighteen of these have died, and twenty-four are still in the church. The whole number of deaths of the members has been thirty eight. The present membership is three hundred and twenty-seven. There have been three hundred and eighty-four baptisms in all, the largest number in any one year being fifty-eight, the present year. After which Rev. A. H. Sembower, pastor of the First Baptis Church, made a short address. The vocal and instrumental music rendered by the choir was excellent as well as appropriate. The affairs of the church are in a prosperous condition.

> If these people mean to fight, then the sending of troops down there will result in war at home, and this is a consideration of the utmost magnitude.[105]

General Burnside immediately proposed to declare martial law in Sullivan County, and it is fortunate that the eminently fair and cool-headed Orlando B. Willcox was state military commander instead of the partisan, bungling Hascall.[106] Willcox opposed his chief, blaming the "ugly state of affairs" in the area on the "indiscretion of our troops," a reference to the military foray of June 5, as much as anything else. He attributed the murder of Freeman to motives other than draft resistance, and maintained that those actually proposing to resist the draft were "ignorant and irresponsible, . . . not countenanced by the respectable, even Democrats." He claimed to have the support of United States Marshal David G. Rose and Colonel Conrad Baker, state provost marshal, in desiring to employ "peaceable measures." This meant securing the co-operation of Congressman Voorhees and other prominent Democrats of the region in quieting the people, which would enable the completion of enrollment "without extensive armed resistance."[107] Burnside still preferred brute force to pacific policies, objecting to "advisers of the stamp of Mr. Voorhees" and to "compromising with traitors in arms." Willcox, backed by Morton, persisted in his course, however, which probably averted a conflagration along the lower Wabash.[108] Voorhees was described as very co-operative and it may have been largely due to his exertions that enrollment proceeded peacefully when it was resumed.[109] Burnside apparently relished the prospect of subduing the refractory Democrats of the area by military force, claiming that Kentucky, where such things were a matter of course, was a "more loyal state" than Indiana, Illinois, or Ohio. It is fortunate that he, like his fellow spirit Hascall, departed from the scene before the year was out.[110]

The passing of the crisis regarding the draft failed to bring peace and quiet to Sullivan County, however. On June 20 a bipartisan meeting held in an attempt to allay the public excitement passed a resolution indicating that the situation was still extremely dangerous. All citizens were urged to "abandon the use of harsh epithets and unjust aspersions towards their political opponents if they would preserve peace and harmony."

> It is only by maintaining law and order that we can save our persons from the assassin's knife and our property from the incendiary's torch.[111]

An amusing episode two days later illustrates the degree of the tension in the county. A local Republican described as "nearly crazy with excitement" rushed into Sullivan claiming he had been fired upon by an unseen gunman from such close range that the discharge had set fire to his coat. It developed that all the damage to the man's clothing and composure had resulted from his own pistol going off in his coat pocket. Republicans subsequently reported this incident as another attempt at assassination, proving that their fellows in Sullivan County lived under a "reign of terror." Rumors of riot and murder circulated constantly and kept the people at a fever pitch.[112]

Another crisis broke in the area on June 23, when an enrollment officer in Monroe County, just across the line from Greene, was intimidated by a reported eighty armed men and deprived of his lists. The reaction of state officials seems to indicate that they had resolved to force a showdown. In the face of reports that fifteen hundred men were in arms in the area, most of the 71st Indiana Infantry Regiment and a company from the 3rd Cavalry under Colonel James Biddle were sent to the scene. After his arrival Biddle was re-enforced with a section of artillery at his request. In the face of this formidable force of twelve hundred men resistance evaporated. In fact, it was reported that the troops found the entire country almost abandoned by its inhabitants, with only a few men too old for the draft left to care for things.[113] Biddle experienced no difficulty in recapturing the enrollment lists, and somehow searched out sixteen of the "principal offenders" who were taken to Indianapolis and examined by General Willcox. The general found them to be ignorant and harmless, and released most of them after a brief interrogation. Enrollment was then recommenced and carried out without further trouble.[114]

The preceding disturbance became the basis of wildly exaggerated reports that full-scale warfare between Biddle's troops and the refractory natives of the area had broken out. These stories appeared in papers as far away as New York, and Provost Marshal General James B. Fry in Washington decided to take a hand in the game. He urged Colonel Baker to act quickly and ruthlessly so as to "strike terror" into those presuming to resist the government. Armed resistance should be crushed "unrelentingly, even cruelly," which policy would be the most effective, and, in the long run, the most merciful.[115] Baker temporized, maintaining that such action as his chief advocated would probably worsen the situation by uniting the opposition and result in grave difficulties. He preferred more pacific measures, which would create dissension among the disaffected and thus avoid concerted and widespread resistance. The latter policy was defended as particularly appropriate in view of the fact that Biddle had met with no resistance and was experiencing no difficulty in continuing the enrollment.[116]

It seems extremely fortunate that Fry's advice was not followed. The Democrats of the area seem to have been apprehensive that Biddle's true objective was an invasion of the Sullivan-Greene County area and wholesale arrests among the opponents of the administration residing therein. It was reported in Greene County that the day before Biddle's force arrived large numbers of men "dropped their work and rushed pell-mell towards Monroe County," assembling, armed and ready for action, just across the county line from the scene of the draft disturbance. They were said to have mustered for several hours and then dispersed.[117] This and other evidence seems to indicate a disposition to attack Biddle's force should it cross the county line and undertake operations not connected with enforcing enrollment. It is not known that Biddle had any such intention, but such a move may have been contemplated. Colonel Baker blamed the entire disturbance on the agitation of Democratic politicians, and hoped to be able to gather sufficient evidence to take action against them.[118] Somewhat later it was reported that two thousand men had been deployed to resist any such movement on Biddle's part, which might explain why he confined himself strictly to draft matters and requested the artillery.[119]

State officials not only disregarded Fry's advice but also refused Burnside's continuing requests for their consent to a declaration of martial law.[120] Despite a reported belief, presumably based on the reports of Republicans in the area, that Greene and Sullivan counties were "in a condition bordering upon open rebellion," they refrained from taking forcible action. Instead of soldiers and martial law, they sent General John L. Mansfield of the state militia to survey the condition of affairs. The general arrived unexpectedly in Bloomfield, Greene County, on July 1, and from there went to Sullivan. He was reported as saying he was "agreeably disappointed" to find that the supposed state of near rebellion did not exist and that no troops were needed as had been alleged. Mansfield spoke to allay partisan animosity, which he apparently regarded as the main cause of difficulty, and departed after four or five days.[121]

One Democrat wrathfully censured the administration partisans of the area who, by their "false representations," had nearly induced authorities to send a military force which they hoped to employ to wreak vengeance upon their opponents. He commended the "wise and cautious course" which had been followed instead, and credited Mansfield with averting a catastrophe:

> Had he pursued a different course and caused soldiers to be sent . . ., licensed as they seem to have been at other places to insult our people, take their property, and arrest quiet and innocent persons, the counties of Greene and Sullivan . . . would have been one universal scene of bloodshed and conflagration.[122]

The general's efforts to quiet partisan feeling were unavailing. Early in July Republicans broadcast the claim that several "union men" had been driven out of Sullivan County and had taken refuge in Terre Haute. Editor Briggs denied that any administration adherents had been terrorized. He maintained that no Republican who minded his own business had anything to fear, as the undisturbed existence of most of them in the county proved. He admitted of the possibility that some zealots had made themselves so obnoxious by denouncing neighbors who differed with them in politics as "secessionists and traitors" that they might have provoked threats.[123]

Several months later one of the reputed exiles, William R. Bennett, who had in the meantime returned to Sullivan County and found himself unwelcome, published an interesting letter cial Assembly, 1725, and of the Provincial Council, 1726, and a trustee of the Society of Free Traders in Pensylvania, etc.

He was a member of the Philadelphia Monthly Meeting, where he was married to Mary, daughter of Dr. Richard Hoskins, (then deceased), 1. 10mo. 1711, (53 Friends signed their certificate), and had four children by her, of record at the Arch Street Meeting. Welsh Settlement Pa by Charles Browning Lying adjacent to the city of Philadelphia, (or Penn's Liberties, or old Blockley township's 7,580 acres), which has grown to its bounds,* the lands of the Welsh settlers it may be seen are naturally advantageously situated for great and greater improvement. And to further enhance the value of these lands bought from Penn for a few shillings an acre, and to make them most accessible as a residential section, within a few minutes of the heart of the business district of the city, there are two great "steam roads," an "electric road," a "trolley line," and two broad, well-kept avenues for "limousines." Yet, strange to relate, these advantages and possibilities in the "country lots." received general recognition only a few years ago, and the greatest changes in the "Seven Companies'" tracts have occurred only in the last twenty-five years, when farms disappeared, and "country places" succeeded, and these in turn are being "cut up into lots to suit purchasers," hence a multitude of small holdings and a greater population.

This is the present state of the "Thomas and Jones" tract, and those adjoining of the other Welsh companies, and back from the river line, and along the river front of the pioneer company, called for convenience Number One, starting at the Falls of Schuylkill, there are the great plants of the American Bridge Company, and the Pencoyd Iron Works, conducted by descendants of the first Welsh settlers, while across the entire Thomas and Jones tract is the roadway of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad. Here also are the properties of the West Laurel Hill Cemetery, on lands of Robert David and Edward Owen, or Dr. Griffith Owen, or Robert David and Dr. Edward Jones, and Dr. Griffith, proprietors at various times, and of the Westmoreland Cemetery, on land of William ap Edward, or of Hugh Roberts, while the settlements of Belmont Heights and Ashland Heights are laid out on the lands of Katherine Thomas.

With the disappearance of the "Welsh Tract" as a distinct territory in the Province, begin the annals peculiar to the townships that lay in this tract. Some of those of the townships called Merion, Haverford, and Radnor, the original settlements of the Welsh Friends, with their preparative meetings, one in each township, by whose names they were and are still known, united in a monthly meeting called Haverford at first, and subsequently Radnor, that met alternately in its earliest years with these three meetings, are of especial interest, because of the many Welshmen, prominent in provincial affairs, who resided within their bounds.

Of these three adjoining "towns," as at first they were called, first attention is given to "Merion in the Welsh Tract," which it needs no imagination to believe, and which has before been said, was named for the Welsh shire whence came its first Welsh settlers, the party of Dr. Jones, in the summer of 1682. This township in its early days was some-wood, James Cresson, Isaac Lobdale, &c., were carpenters; Joseph Bringhurst, and William Shippen, coopers; Joseph Claypoole, Benjamin Horner, Thomas Cuthbert, Jr., Jonathan Wainwright, and David Bacon, were hatters; William Lippincott, Christopher Sellers, Robert Bailey, James Welch, John McCalla, &c., tailors; Benjamin Rundolph, Alexander Frazier, George Claypoole, were joiners; John Guest, Andrew Filler, John Hood, Jr., and Benjamin Paschall, were cordwainers; John Spencer, the butcher; John Drinker, and Thomas Hallowell, bricklayers; Henry Neill, Joseph Frazier, Thomas Middleton, and Henry Lisle, were bakers; William Bedford, the sadler; James Claypoole, the glazier; Isaac Snowden, and Benjamin Sharpless, tanners; Benjamin Shoemaker, distiller; Jonathan Shoemaker, blacksmith; John Biddle, and Abraham Wayne, tavern keepers; John Snowden, potter; Thomas Cuthbert, mast maker; Philip Syng, goldsmith; and some of the shopkeepers were George Sharswood, Blair McClanachan, William Turnbull, Edward and George Bartram, Clement Biddle, Geo. Anthony Morris, &c.

*Pownall in his journal, journeying from Philadelphia to the Susquehanna in 1754, says:—Crossed the Schuylkill at Coalters' Ferry. "All plots of this town represent it as extending from the Delaware to the Schuylkill. That this town should ever have such an extent is impossible. It does not now extend one-third of the way, those, therefore, who bought lots on speculation were much deceived."

past the General Wayne Inn and the Merion Meeting House, crossing the properties of Bowman, John Wainwright, John Underwood, William Thomas, Edward Price, to Libertyville, where it again crossed the Lancaster road, and pareleling it again, passed over the lands of Owen Jones, and over Cherry Lane, and through the old farm of John Wister, beyond which, at the Montgomery Avenue tollgate, and where Church road intersects this avenue (the old Lancaster road), passing the new High School building, it again crossed the Lancaster road, and thence southwestwardly, between what is now Coulter avenue, and the tracks of the Pensylvania Railroad Company, it continued through Athensville (now Ardmore), and so on, crossing the Philadelphia and Lancaster pike, passing between Founders Hall, of Haverford College, and the old Haverford Meeting House, to White Hall Inn to Paoli, and out of our district towards Lancaster. When the Pensylvania Railroad Company took over the "Columbia Road" it vacated the route to Athensville,and established the one now used, but for years it used the balance of the old roadbed, passing White Hall Inn.

A poster advertisement of the "Through Line from Philadelphia to St. Louis," the "Pioneer Fast Line," dated Philadelphia, April, 1837, advertised, with pictures of an engine and one passenger car, and a canal boat, drawn by three horses: "By Rail Road and Canal Packets, / from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, / through in 3½ days, / and by Steam Boats, carrying the United States Mail, / from Pittsburgh to Louisville, / starts every morning, from the corner of Board & Race St. / In large and splendid eight wheel cars, via Lancaster and Harrisburg Rail Roads, arriving at the latter place, at 4 o'clock, in the afternoon, where / passengers will take the Packets, which have all been fitted up in a very superior manner, having been built expressly for the accommodation / of Passengers, after the most approved models of Boats used on the Erie Canal, and are not surpassed by the / Boats used upon any other Line. / For speed and comfort, this Line is not excelled by any other in the United States. / Passengers for Cincinnati, Louisville, Natchez, Nashville, St. Louis, &c. / Will always be certain of being taken on without delay, as this Line connects with the Boats at Pittsburgh, carrying the Mail. / Office, N. The list of advertised stopping points in 1850, on the "Central Pensylvania," its successor, also give an idea of the direction of the "Columbia Railway" beyond the river. These were Merion, or Merionville, Libertyville, Athensville, Haverford, Whitehall, West Haverford, Villa Nova, Morgan's Corner, Eagle, Reesville, Paoli, &c. The city depot was then at Broad and Cherry streets. Before the junction with the new road at Columbia, the old railway in the year 1849, carried 90,250 passengers, but after the connection with the "Pensylvania," the Columbia is credited with 146,320 passengers, in 1852, and 162,136 in the next year, and its freight increased proportionately, showing the value of the route extended.

The following few items from the 1860 issue of "The Business Guide of the Pensylvania Railroad" give us some knowledge of the "Main Line" and its stations at that time. It says that West Philadelphia is the first station on the road, and that here "locomotive engines" are attached to trains, the carriages having been drawn there by mules from the city. The next stops are at Hestonville, 3 miles, and City Line, 5 miles, but these were only flag stations. The next stops were at Merion and Libertyville. But they were also only "flag stations for the convenience of a thickly settled country, principally the country residences of Philadelphians." The post office for these points was at General Wayne. Of our thriving town of Ardmore, then called Athensville, that it is 7½ miles from the city. "It has no

Address of the Council of New Jersey to Thomas Pownall, Lieut.-Governor, and his Answer.

[From P. R. O. B. T. New Jersey, Vol. 8, I. 57.]

To THE HONOURABLE THOMAS. POWNALL ESQ^{R}
Lieutenant Governor and Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Colony of New Jersey.

The Humble Address of His Majesty's Council of said Colony.

May it Please Your Honour.

We His Majesty's Council of the Colony of New Jersey, beg Leave to congratulate You on Your Arrival here. Your undertaking so long a Journey and leaving the Weighty Government to which His Majesty has been pleased to appoint You, in Order to establish the Government in this Colony, which was for some Days unsettled, thro' the Reluctance of the Gentleman on whom the Administration devolved, by His Majesty's Royal Commission and Instructions, to lay himself under a Necessity at and advanced Age to appear in Publick Character, and a Scene of Business, was a Favour more than We cou'd Expect.

And We esteem Your Coming to take upon Yourself the Administration, as an evident Proof of Your Zeal for His Majesty's Service, and of Your Regard for this Province, for which we Return You our hearty Thanks, and doubt not but the Colony will consider themselves under an Obligation for so singular an Instance of Your Care. the precincts of Gloucester, of which county the elder Reading was Clerk and Recorder from 1687 to 1711, and possibly longer.—First Settlers of Newton Township, by John Clement, 1877, pp. 29, 95, 143, 245, 291; Leaming and Spicer, 536, 544. 553, 566; Reminiscences of Old Gloucester, by Isaac Mickle, 2d ed., 1877, p. 47. In 1697 he was a member of the House of Representatives of West Jersey (N. J. Archives, II, 146), and in 1702 was recommended for a seat in the Council of the United Province.—Ib., 486. He was one of the West Jersey Council of Proprietors in 1706-7, and probably continuously thereafter, as in 1711 he was still a Proprietor, and was Clerk to the Council of West Jersey Proprietors.—Ib., III, 221; IV, 62. In 1711 Governor Hunter directed a commission to be issued to Mr. Reading as one of the Supreme Court Judges of the Province.—Ib., IV, 140. He was again recommended in 1711 and in 1712 for a seat in the Governor's Council, and in 1713 the recommendation was approved (Ib., 62, 153, 171, 182-3), and he continued to enjoy the dignity until his death, which appears to have occurred in 1717.—Ib., 333. In 1695 he became the owner of the ferry at Gloucester Point, and carried on the ferry under a license from the county until 1707.—First Settlers of Newton Township, 290. From the map of Gloucester and suburbs, drawn by Thomas Sharpe in 1689, and published in Mickle's "Reminiscences of Old Gloucester," 2d ed., p. 40, Reading appears to have been a large property owner in and about that town. He, with William Biddle and William Mills, was sent in 1703 to purchase the great tract of 150,000 acres, between the Raritan and Delaware. His residence was burned down in 1711, which doubtless occasioned his removal from Old Gloucester to his tract of land above Lambertville, where he died, and was buried in the grounds of the Buckingham Friends' Meeting, in Bucks County, Penn.—First Century of Hunterdon County, p. 29; First Settlers of Newton Township, 291. The statement that he was a member of the Council of West Jersey that met at Burlington in 1683 is not borne out by the list given in Leaming and Spicer, for that year.

Jn^{o}. Reading the son, was born June 6th, 1686, and died November 7th, 1767. He and his sister Elsie, when children, were taken to England by their mother to be educated. She remained with them nine years, attending to their education, the father living in this country. On the return of the son it was found that he had embraced the doctrines of the Presbyterians, to which he was ardently attached all his life. He married Mary Ryerson, a sister of Joseph Ryerson, then a Lieutenant in the British service. [Sabine's Loyalists, II, 250.] He succeeded to the greater part of his father's estate, and followed his father's occupation. In 1712 to 1715 he surveyed tracts for parties in Burlington, who were locating lands through the Amwell Valley, under the grants of the dividend of 1703. At the same time, with an eye to a valuable purchase, which a surveyor would be supposed to have, he secured for himself 600 acres along the South Branch, two miles from Flemington, where afterwards, on a beautiful site, he built the Reading homestead, now (1878) occupied by Philip Brown. He is said to have planted the walnut trees growing there. He owned three mill properties, including the farms now (1878) in possession of Barton, Stothoff, Deats, Ewing, Clark and Brown. He was one of the first Trustees of Princeton College. His name is at the head of the list in 1748.—History of the' College of New Jersey, by John Maclean, 1877, I, 48. His influence

BIDDLE-KEMBLE —Mrs. Ivan J. Biddle is the former Miss Marilyn J. Kemble.

Biddle, Kemble Rite Held

A floor length gown of white bridal satin was worn by Miss Marilyn J. Kemble when she became the bride of Ivan J. Biddle at 2 p.m. Sunday in Lakeville Methodist Church, Lakeville. Rev. Charles W. Cook performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Leroy E. Kemble, Lakeville, and Oliver Biddle of Phoenix, Ariz.

The bride's gown was fashioned with a lowered round neckline and long sleeves with points over the wrists. A detachable chapel length train was secured by a tailored self-fabric bow at the natural waistline. The bodice, bottom of the pleated skirt and the train were accented with appliques of lace and circlets of seed pearls.

Carries White Roses

A satin pillbox with appliques of lace and circlets of seed pearls secured a double tiered bouffant veil of bridal illusion. She carried a cascade of white roses highlighted with greenery and satin streamers.

Mrs. Dan Wood, niece of the bridegroom, was the matron of honor and Miss Bonnie Feitz, North Liberty, attended as the bridesmaid. Miss Jane Ellen Kemble, Lakeville, niece of the bride, was the flower girl.

The bridal attendants wore floor length gowns of candy pink velveteen styled with Empire bodices accented with bias trim and back bows of self-fabric. Scoop necklines, bell sleeves and A-line skirts completed the dresses. They wore crowns of candy pink velveteen roses.

Dan Wood was the best man and David Patnaude, nephew of the groom, was the usher.

The bride, a graduate of North Liberty High School, attended Manchester College, North Manchester, Ind., and is employed by National Bank & Trust Co.

The bridegroom, who had been living at 823 Harrison Ave., was graduated from Riley High School and is employed by MacDonald Studio.

A reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church immediately following th mony.

Flie-boat
Martha

Ship - "Martha" New Castle Court Records of "ye 6th of Oct. 1677" state that ~~t~~ "ye Shipp Martha, Thomas Wharcup, Master from Hull Was given clearance papers to pass up the river." The record reads as follows;

Thomas Wharcup, Master of "ye Shipp Martha" arrivie from hull, desiering to goe up ye River with his shipp Loadeing & passengers, Sayeing that hee has no goods for merChandize on board but only utensils for passengers."

Permission was granted for the ship to " goe up the River." It is probable that the Martha cast anchor at Wicaco, a little below Philadelphia, & there discharged her one hundred & fourteen passengers. Smith lists the following masters of families as being on board, most of whom were Yorkshire Quakers: Thomas Wright, William Goforth John Lynam, Edward Season, William Black, Richard Dungworth, Georges Miles, William Wood, Thomas Schooley, Richard Harrison Thomas Hooten, Samuel Taylor, Marmaduke Horseman, William Oxley, William Ley and Nathaniel ~~Duke~~ Luke. The families of Robert Stacey & John Batts, servants of George Hutcheson, also were passengers.

The Kent, Willing Mind & the Flie-boat Martha are the only ships mentioned by Smith as arriving in 1677 but the "Registry of Arrivals to West Jersey" also mentions the Phenix, Mathew Shearer, Master. I have found no other reference to the Phenix & it is possible that it did not bring passengers to Burlington Co.

Hannig welcomes new owner to firm he began

By Cheryl Bickel
Tribune-Star Staff Reporter

When Shelton Hannig saw 60 candles on his birthday cake, he knew he had to do something about it. And soon.

Tuesday, he'll walk into the business he began in 1960 and find someone else behind the president's desk. And that will make the former president very happy.

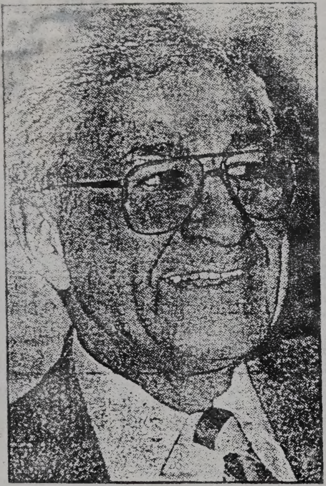
Hannig, now 64, officially hands over to Bill Biddle the presidency of Shelton Hannig Inc. and Construction Consultants Inc. on the first day of the corporation's 1988 fiscal year. Hannig will continue working and will hold the title of chairman of the board for the corporation housed at 815 Swan St.

"Immortality is difficult to maintain," Hannig said, grinning. "I had to make a decision, because I was getting into my 60s, whether I wanted to perpetuate the company or retire."

Hannig, obviously, decided to keep his architectural consulting company in operation. But the decision hinged upon finding the right man for the job, he said. Hannig and Biddle had met only once about nine years ago, but mutual business connections kept each aware of the other.

"Basically, we had an excellent consultant firm that wanted an owner. And I wanted to be an owner," Biddle said. "I wanted my own company."

Biddle, 41, had worked for Kettelhut Construction Inc. of Lafayette since 1968, working his way up from project engineer to general contractor. Before that, he worked for two years as an assistant engineer for Indiana Department of Highways.



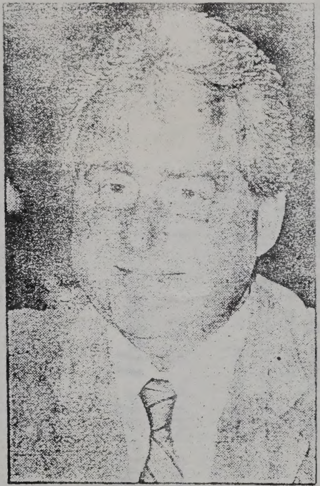
SHELTON HANNIG
Retiring logical at 64

He attended Indiana State University, but left without a degree. He worked his way through a huge staff of architects with degrees.

"You have to work harder when you're one step behind," he said. "I put a great deal of value on managerial ability based on experience [rather than[theory."

Biddle began working for Hannig in January as executive vice president and chief of construction operations. The company's annual gross business volume has varied from $5 to $15 million since its inception. The company has about 20 people full-time and fills 50 to 200 union construction jobs during construction projects.

Hannig has designed buildings across Indiana and Illinois and local projects including the Vigo County Public Library, Indiana State University buildings, and the new International Business Machines Corp. building at Seventh Street and Wabash Avenue.



BILL BIDDLE
Work outweighed degree

Hannig is not ready to trade in his days at the drawing board just yet, and he says he won't mind trading his top spot to a younger man.

"Basically, it's just logical planning when you're in your 60s," he said.

Neither Biddle nor Hannig would disclose the purchase price of the company, which will be made over several years. Basic operations will remain, Biddle said.

Hannig Construction Inc. is to replace Shelton Hannig Inc. as the corporate tag, but the consulting company name will remain the same, Biddle said, adding that he would not consider dropping the founder's name completely.

The William Johnson House

Lower Penns Neck—1815

The William Johnson house in Lower Penns Neck is a splendid example of early American architecture. It was built in 1815. James Johnson was a descendant of a Swedish family which emigrated to this section of the Delaware River Valley in 1640.

According to Thomas Shourds in his History of Fenwick's Colony, James Johnson was a soldier of the Revolution and fought at Fort Mercer. After the war he became a farmer, settling on this tract in Lower Penns Neck.

His son, William, was the builder of this mansion. About William hangs a legend which may account for the curious split or "part" wall in the illustration. That room on the second floor was to be the master's bedroom. In building the house, William Johnson decreed that the wall be only a half wall, so that he could look out back, from the master's front bedroom window, and make sure his barns were not on fire. What he might efficaciously do about it, is not stated. However, the legend does explain the peculiarly-cut wall.

The doorway of the Johnson House is a rare and beautiful thing, with fluted dentil work, fan light and raised panels.

The Johnson house passed from the Johnson family some years ago, the last deed holder being the late ex-Sheriff William Johnson. It was sold to the late Howard Whitehead, who in turn sold it to Leon "Goose" Goslin, well known American League baseball player. It is now owned by the heirs of J. Dale Dilworth.

Beetle or Biddle House

UPPER PENNS NECK, 1763

This house is located on the Auburn road, above the Harding Highway. The date is clear enough to make it visible from the road, fully a hundred yards away. To old-timers, this property was known as Pedrick's farm; in more recent days as "Don's," from the present owner, Dominick Schiaffo.

The house stands on what was originally a large tract of 117 acres conveyed by William Beetle (which name has since been changed to Biddle) to his son John, in May of 1758. The initials, then, presumably stand for John and Catharine Beetle. About a mile and a half southeast of this house, the same family conducted the famous Beetle's Tavern, which served Upper Penns Neck as a hostelry for over a century. This old tavern, a frame structure, still stands.

This is one of the few specimens of the brick layers' artistry in the upper part of Salem County, which has survived the years and the various doses of stucco the "modern" owners insisted on giving an ancient dwelling. On this house is a small yet neat diaper design with a fantastic decorative trim. This smaller sized design seems to be the closing or final period design of the brick artists, for this decade is just about the last to produce glazed brick work.

The property remained with the Biddles until 1846, when it was sold to Thomas Dolbow; then it came down in title to Lockes and Pedricks.

married 1665/6
William Biddle married at Friends Meeting in Bishopsgate Street, London, Feb. 7, 1665, to Sarah Kempe, a widow

Careful and scientific research has revealed beyond doubt that the American Biddles are descended from the family of the same name;(Biddulph of Elmhurst & Biddulph both of in Staffordshire) seated during the early seventeenth century at Birlingham in Worcestershire and before that at Bushley, also in Worcestershire.

Documentary evidence has obtained which clearly co-ordinates the four generations prior to William Biddle, the emigrant as follows;

1. John Byddull of Bushley, b. circa 1500 was the father of
2. Edward Byddyle of Poole in Bushley, who married Elizabeth Wyatt sister of the Rev. John Wyatt, Vicar of Bushley; this Edward's son.
3. John Biddle of Bushley, married Elizabeth Higgins; he died in 1626, leaving with other issue a son
4. Edward, sometimes Edmond, Biddle of Birlingham, whose son
5. William Biddle b. 1632, emigrated with his family to America and settled at Mount Hope, New Jersey.

Sarah Kempe at the Westbury Street meeting place London. and marriage to William Biddle as the second wife of Roger Kemp of the parish of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate Street Without London. who died 12 April 1665 aged 60 yrs.

Sarah was the dau of John Smith, of this parish, merchante, and Anne Wrighte, of ye parish of St. Marys Le Bowe in ye city of London, the late dau of William Wright, of London, ~~the~~ mercer, deceased, per license Kempe.

William Wright of the parish St. Mary le Bowe, London m. Barbara (Smith) Snow her marry 2nd. from his will 6 Sept. 1593. John Snowe, haberdasher, & Barbara Smith, spinster, of the Parish of St. Margaret Pattens, London dau of Thos Smith of Henley-on-Thames, County Oxford gentleman, were granted a license on 27 July 1585 to marry at. St. Margarets.

Sarah Smith dau of John Smith baptised 11th Feb 1637/8 in St. Botolph's Bishopsgate, London was dau of John Smith who was possibly a member of both the Cooks & the Drapers' Companies of London, & his wife Anne (Wright) Smith, She was perhaps the granddaughter of John Smith, Master of the Cooks' Company in 1620 & almost certainly granddaughter of William Wright, Mercer & member of the Clothworkers' Company of London, & great granddaughter of James Wright of Marbury in Cheshire. In 1655 she married and as his second wife of, Roger Kemp, also, of St. Botolph's Parish who died in 1665, and he married, secondly, William Biddle in 1666.

We know from the Quaker record of her marriage to William Biddle that "Sarah Kemp widow" lived in Bishopsgate Street, which is in the Parish of St. Botolphs, Bishopsgate. See: The antecedents in England of William and Sarah Biddle. (Smith children are listed)

Biddulph

A small, well-planned industrial town set in the heart of lonely moorland. The parish church contains beautiful Flemish stained glass. Biddulph Old Hall, dated 1558, was badly damaged by Parliamentary troops during the Civil War but has recently been restored.

On Biddulph Moor, rising to over 1000 ft just east of the town, is the source of the 170 mile long River Trent, England's third-longest river after the Severn and the Thames. To the north are the Bridestones, a burial chamber in which it is said a Viking and his Anglo-Saxon wife were interred.

Cheadle

An old market town in the North Staffordshire hills, and a gateway to the richly wooded Churnet Valley. The 200-ft steeple of the Roman Catholic church, designed in 1846 by A. W. Pugin, one of the architects of the Houses of Parliament, is a landmark for miles around. There are picturesque half-timbered Elizabethan houses, and an ancient market cross.

Hawksmoor Nature Reserve, 2 miles north-east, was founded by the Staffordshire naturalist J. R. B. Masefield, a cousin of the poet John Masefield, and is now owned by the National Trust. Nature trails run through its 250 acres of moors, marshes and woodland, and provide a close view of birdlife.

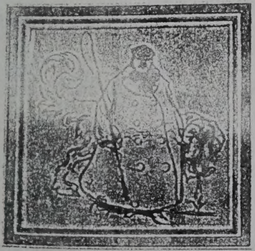
Ilam

A village in the attractive Manifold Valley. Its church contains a carved Norman font, and there are two Saxon crosses in the churchyard. The River Manifold, joined by the River Hamps, disappears underground near Beeston Tor in dry weather and reappears in the grounds of Ilam Hall; Dr Johnson experimented with a marked cork to prove that they were the same waters.

William Congreve, the Restoration playwright, wrote The Old Bachelor while convalescing in Ilam. Old Steeplehouse Farm, half a mile north-west, gives views of the Manifold Valley.

Bones and teeth of early animals, including cave lions and cave hyenas, have been found in caves, such as Elder Bush Cave, along the Manifold Valley. Two attractive villages beside the Manifold gorge are Longnor and Wetton; the church at Longnor is notable for its memorial to a veteran of the Battle of Ramillies (1706), who is said to have lived to 112 years.

BENNETT AND HIS DOG



A cartoon of the novelist Arnold Bennett and his dog, drawn by Sir William Nicholson (1872–1949). Bennett was born near Hanley in 1867, and most of his famous novels, including The Old Wives' Tale, The Card, and Clayhanger, are set in the towns of the Potteries, which he immortalised as the 'Five Towns'

Kidsgrove

An industrialised town in the western foothills of the Pennines which owes its origin to Josiah Wedgwood, 'father' of the English pottery industry, who proposed the plan for the Trent and Mersey Canal to link the Potteries to the sea. His engineer, James Brindley, took 11 years to build a tunnel more than 1½ miles long through Harecastle Ridge in Kidsgrove, and the men who worked on the canal became the town's first inhabitants. The tunnel, now disused, still exists.

The town's coal mines and blast furnaces have been succeeded by the electronics and computer industries.

Newcastle-under-Lyme

Although the town has vast, sprawling collieries, ironworks and some potteries, it is set in rural countryside among woods and pleasant little villages.

Keele, 3 miles west, once an administrative centre of the powerful Knights Templar, has a modern university, its contemporary buildings grouped around the old Keele Hall.

Madeley Manor, another ancient home about 2 miles west of Keele, has become a College of Education. Izaak Walton stayed here with his host John Offley, to whom he dedicated his book The Compleat Angler.

Trentham Gardens and Park, 3½ miles south, were once the property of the Dukes of Sutherland, and are now Staffordshire's largest pleasure grounds. The gardens were mostly laid out by the architect Sir Joseph Paxton.

Only a length of wall in the Queen Elizabeth Park now remains of the 12th-century 'new' castle from which the town takes its name.

Rudyard

A delightful village with a pretty cluster of houses and gardens, set at the south end of lovely woods bordering Rudyard Reservoir. The reservoir was built to supply water to the Trent and Mersey Canal. There are good walks and picnic spots on the shore, and boating and fishing are permitted.

Rudyard Kipling, the novelist and poet, was named after the village, since it was here that his parents became engaged in the 1860's. Walks along the shore of Rudyard Reservoir lead to fascinating caverns, curious rock formations and Roman copper workings.

CORKSCREW FOUNTAIN A spring 2 miles away feeds the Corkscrew Fountain in the grounds of Alton Towers. The gardens were laid out between 1814 and 1827

Stoke-on-Trent

The names of Wedgwood, Minton, Copeland and Spode are known all over the world as incomparable examples of fine pottery and porcelain. All these wares are manufactured in this corner of north Staffordshire, where excavations prove that pottery has been made since long before the Roman occupation. The five towns of Tunstall, Burslem, Hanley, Longton and Stoke, made famous in Arnold Bennett's novels, amalgamated in 1910 together with a sixth town, Fenton, to form the one town of Stoke-on-Trent, now a city of 36 square miles. Many of the pottery firms have also merged, into a company called Allied Potteries.

It was in 1759 that Josiah Wedgwood, born in Burslem in 1730, set up his own business. The beauty of his pottery, after the brilliant Classical sculptor and designer John Flaxman had stamped his own creative genius on it, established a fashion for Wedgwood all over the civilised world. The industry grew to an importance which has never diminished. The Regency church in Stoke-on-Trent has a memorial to Wedgwood, and the Wedgwood Memorial Institute in Burslem commemorates the site of his first pottery factory.

Arnold Bennett's family lived from 1880 at 205 Waterloo Road, Cobridge, and Hanley was the home of Reginald Mitchell, designer of the Spitfire fighter plane, for most of his life.

At Smallthorne, near Burslem, Ford Green Hall, a fine Elizabethan timber-framed house, had associations with Izaak Walton and the early Quakers and now has a charming little museum.

The House of Commons was indeed, for once, acting promptly.

The Directory debated in the Parliament, November, 1644, to January, 1645.

On the 22nd of November, 1644, and following days, the day after the Assembly's "humble advice concerning a directory for the public worship of God in the three kingdoms" had been presented, the Commons sat down at eight o'clock in the morning peremptorily to consider it. Clause by clause it was read, and each particular title and paragraph voted and passed upon the question. Alterations were made—slight, but significant. In the clause of the chapter relating to the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, which concerned the sitting at or about the table, the words "as in the Church of Scotland" were voted to be omitted by 57 to 34.

On the 23rd[2] of November, the substance of the Directory for Worship was passed, with the exception of the clause relating to the admission to the Sacrament, a clause which the House referred to a committee. On the following Saturday, 30th November, this committee reported advising the omission of the clause as it stood in the "humble advice," and proposing in the place of it the words "the ignorant and the scandalous are not fit to receive the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper". These words were accordingly adopted and ordered to be inserted.[3] On the same day the Ordinance for taking away the Book of Common Prayer, and for establishing and putting in execution the Directory, was introduced into the House, read a first and likeness is suspended from so many public houses. His son, the 5th Duke, decided to remodel his home into a semblance of a medieval castle and obtained the services of James Wyatt, much of whose work was destroyed by fire in 1816. The Duchess, who fancied herself as an architect, then decided to take over, aided by the Duke's cousin the Rev. Sir John Thoroton. The results of many of their efforts are unfortunate.

The interior, much of which is by Wyatt's sons, Benjamin and Matthew, contains magnificent Gobelin tapestries, paintings by Van Dyck, Reynolds, Hogarth, Murillo, and one of the finest portraits of Henry VIII by Holbein. The gardens, particularly the azaleas and rhododendrons in the Water Garden, are splendid. Outside the Mausoleum is a monument to the first Viscount Norwich (Duff Cooper), husband of Lady Diana Manners, daughter of the 8th Duke. The altar within the mausoleum consists of a white marble memorial to the 5th Duchess, whose rise to heaven amid eerie lighting is welcomed by her four dead children offering her a crown of glory.

Belvoir is open to the public and refreshments are served inside.

For those who are wondering about the famous Belvoir Hunt, which sports the best-looking pack in the country, it should be added that, though Leicestershire is a huntsman's paradise, the Belvoir actually meets in Lincolnshire. The Fernie alone hunts in Leicestershire exclusively.

BERESFORD DALE, Derbyshire (12–SK 1359). Although the scenery is not as dramatic as that in DOVEDALE, Beresford Dale is the genuine Izaak Walton stretch of the River Dove. It was here that he and his friend Charles Cotton spent many hours fishing. Beresford Hall, Cotton's birthplace which looked down on the Dale, is now in ruins; but the famous Fishing Temple still stands, a stone-built, single-roomed structure with a pyramid roof, erected by Cotton in 1674. It is now in private hands but can be seen from the footpath on the other bank. Halfway along the dale is the Pike Pool, so named by Cotton because of the "pike", a tall, narrow grey rock which sticks up out of the waters like a giant fish.

BETLEY, Staffordshire (8–SJ7548), is a serene village about 5 m. W. of NEWCASTLE-UNDER-LYME, with a wide street and half-timbered houses. There is a 13th-cent. church, which was restored during the 17th cent. and contains a remarkable amount of timber; the splendid roof, nave arcades and clerestory are all of oak and the eight nave pillars have been carved from fully grown oaks. In the late summer a flower show with a high local reputation is held at Betley Court.

BIDDULPH, Staffordshire (8–SJ8857). Not far from this small town, which almost touches the Cheshire border, rises the River Trent, one of England's longest rivers, which then flows for 170 m. through the Midlands. The river rises on Biddulph Moor, 1,100 ft above sea-level. Not far away, are the BRIDESTONES, a Neolithic burial chamber to which a later legend became attached: a Viking and his English bride were said to be buried here. There is a Norman-based font in the church, and some glowing Flemish glass. Of the two big houses here one, the 16th-cent. Old Hall, is a ruin. It was destroyed by Cromwell's men during the Civil War, for the Biddulphs were Royalists; the other, the Grange, is now a children's hospital and is set among magnificent gardens laid out by the famous 19th-cent. horticulturist, James Bateman.

BINGHAM, Nottinghamshire (13–SK7039), is a rapidly growing village, with a sports centre which is a prototype for the whole country.

Its other main interest is the Early English Perpendicular-style steeple of All Saints'. It has one of the finest broach spires in the country, broad and strong with corner buttresses and an additional buttress in the middle of each side. Notable lancet windows set into the thickness of the wall support two-light lancets higher up.

A wooden floorstone commemorates one of the most famous of Nottinghamshire warriors. Sir Thomas Rempstone – rechristened by Shakespeare, probably for reasons of metre, John Ramston – appears in Richard II as of the company listening to John of Gaunt declaiming: "This royal throne of Kings, this sceptred Isle". Sir Thomas helped Henry defeat Richard and claim the crown.

At the west end of the church there is a carving of the Seven Deadly Sins, and a sequence of memorials culminates in the figure of Ann Harrison, who worshipped at this place for all of her 99 years. A fish-seller, she put every other half-crown she earned into the collection. Her photograph is displayed at the beginning of the Book of Honour to the Fallen for which she paid with her contributions. It is laid on a splendid lectern given to the church by the men who came back.

BIRCHOVER, Derbyshire (12–SK2462), is a small village 5 m. S. of BAKEWELL. Many of the strange rocks in the area are believed to have connections with the Druids, a belief reflected in the name of the village pub – Druid Inn. Behind the inn are the Row Tor Rocks, a pile of gritstone about 80 yds long by 50 ft high which includes two "rocking stones", one estimated to weigh 60 tons. The Rev. Thomas Eyre, vicar here in the late 17th cent., had seats carved in some of the rocks and he also built the Church of the Holy Name of Jesus to which the chancel was added in the mid-19th cent. Along the road to Winster can be seen Robin Hood's Stride, two pinnacles of rock which are occasionally tackled by climbers.

On nearby Stanton Moor, which reaches more than 900 ft in parts, are many Bronze Age remains including numerous barrows and several stone circles, the largest of which is known as the Nine Ladies. Many of the finds made in excavations on the moor can be seen in the Heathcote Museum in the village. The old stocks have been restored to their original position at Upper Town.

second time, and committed.[1] The amendments to the Ordinance were reported and adopted on the 12th of December.[2]

On the 28th of December, the completed Directory, together with the Ordinance establishing it, was passed and ordered to be engrossed. On the 1st of January, it was taken up to the Lords by Mr. Rouse.[3] Although the Lords had received the various portions of the Directory concurrently with the Commons, they do not appear to have done more than ceremonially read them, waiting apparently for the initiative of the Lower House. They, however, proceeded immediately to the consideration of the Ordinance and the Directory on receipt of them from the Commons, and passed them with some amendments on the 3rd of January.[4] On the following day these amendments were the subject of a conference between the two Houses, and were finally agreed upon.

The Ordinance for the Directory passed, 1644-45, 4th Jan.

The Ordinance itself, which is prefixed to the Directory, is incorrectly dated 3rd January, 1644-45.

The Directory for Marriage was brought into the House on the 4th of December, and was adopted on the 6th (C. J., iii., 713, 715). The report concerning Burial was brought up on the 13th of December (L. J., vii., 97). Visitation of the Sick presented 16th and 17th December (C. J., iii., 724; L. J., vii., 103), and adopted on the 26th and 28th of December, with alterations (C. J., iv., 2 and 3). The remaining portions concerning Public Fasts, Thanksgiving and Singing of Psalms, were brought to the House on the 27th of December. The appendix touching Days and Places for Public Worship was sent into the House on 1st January 1644-45, and adopted the same day (C. J., iv., 6; Whittaker's Diary, 366).

The rich really are different, an expert says

Social observer Stephen Birmingham claims that it's tough to be born on the Upper Crust

By SUSAN SHERMAN FADEM
Globe-Democrat Staff Writer

Almost like a chef, writer Stephen Birmingham could skewer the so-called Upper Crust. Instead, the best-selling social observer bastes the rich mostly with delightful bitchiness, occasionally wicked humor and, when he can't resist, measured servings of cutting insight.

The rich "really are different," insists the 52-year-old author of 20 books, including such standards as "Real Lace" (Irish-American aristocracy) and "Our Crowd" (Jewish-American elite). Goaded only slightly, Birmingham reveals where bluebloods drive Chevy station wagons, who has a "kept" man and what the rich serve behind closed doors.

About his own roots, the Cincinnati resident is equally candid. (Some 10 years ago, once literary fame made him a prized commodity on New York's party circuit, he escaped to Ohio.) Birmingham's grandfather laid railroad tracks. His mother was Protestant. His Catholic father, the first in his family to attend college, was a successful, if not wealthy, Connecticut attorney.

Q. Does wealth buy entry to the 1980s' Upper Crust?

A. That depends. In New York and Los Angeles, it's how much money you made yesterday. In Boston and Philadelphia, the rule is that you live on income from your income. In Philadelphia, you could be an aging, homosexual, handicapped alcoholic on welfare, and if you were a Biddle or from another prominent family, you would be invited to all the right parties.

In California, there's the Silicon Valley computer crowd. They're pals. They live high and fast, but they'll never be Old Guard.

Q. Who are other Upper Crust regulars?

A. There's Betsy Bloomingdale (bosom buddy of first lady Nancy Reagan and widow of multimillionaire Alfred S.) and her crowd, flashy and pictured in Women's Wear Daily. In New York, there's a very quiet group of old rich families named Thayer. They all live in lovely old brownstones in almost a family compound on East 90th Street. They're all descendants of John Jay, the early American statesman. Jay bread pudding was her favorite dessert. What the rich serve in their homes is rather simple. Crackers and little tiny baby pizzas are very big. The rich also eat chicken, probably Shake 'n' Bake, prepared by someone else.

Pasta salad seems to be "in." Caviar is for the showy. Chocolates are for company. Gloria Vanderbilt told me her chocolates are hidden because she tends to nibble on them.

In New York, most don't drive cars. Instead, the rich radio a cab or limousine service. Jackie Onassis uses a limousine. She also has her own BMW. Her instructions to the limousine service are that she can never have the same driver twice. It's for security and, I guess, because she doesn't want drivers selling items to columnists.

Almost like a chef, writer Stephen Birmingham could skewer the so-called Upper Crust. Instead, the best-selling social observer bastes the rich mostly with delightful bitchiness, occasionally wicked humor and, when he can't resist, measured servings of cutting insight.

The rich "really are different," insists the 52-year-old author of 20 books, including such standards as "Real Lace" (Irish-American aristocracy) and "Our Crowd" (Jewish-American elite). Goaded only slightly, Birmingham reveals where bluebloods drive Chevy station wagons, who has a "kept" man and what the rich serve behind closed doors.

About his own roots, the Cincinnati resident is equally candid. (Some 10 years ago, once literary fame made him a prized commodity on New York's party circuit, he escaped to Ohio.) Birmingham's grandfather laid railroad tracks. His mother was Protestant. His Catholic father, the first in his family to attend college, was a successful, if not wealthy, Connecticut attorney.

Birmingham himself grew up on the fringes of the society he now frequently chronicles. He graduated from preparatory school and Williams College in Williamstown, Mass. After a stint as an advertising writer, he tried his hand at books.

Recently Birmingham, whose most recent book is "The Auerbach Will" (Little, Brown, $15.95), was a featured speaker at the Jewish Book Festival here. During a morning interview, the divorced father of three looked 100 percent Upper Crust, which he claims he isn't. He sported well-worn but unfrayed jeans, a purplish shirt, jaunty scarf around his neck and well-tailored navy jacket. "My blazer is 15 years old. I just discovered it's missing a button," he admitted with a puckish grin.

On and off, the impish smile reappeared during an hourlong interview. Here's an edited transcript:

Q. Tell me about the rich.

A. They really are different. They have good skin. They're all thin. If they want to lose a half a pound, they tell their cooks to feed them only strawberries and yogurt for a week. They never get acne. They smell wonderful.

Q. Does wealth buy entry to the 1980s' Upper Crust?

A. That depends. In New York and Los Angeles, it's how much money you made yesterday. In Boston and Philadelphia, the rule is that you live on income from your income. In Philadelphia, you could be an aging, homosexual, handicapped alcoholic on welfare, and if you were a Biddle or from another prominent family, you would be invited to all the right parties.

In New York, there's a very quiet group of old rich families named Thayer. They all live in lovely old brownstones in almost a family compound on East 90th Street. They're all descendants of John Jay, the early American statesman. Jay had a very prominent nose. So do all the Thayers, and they're terribly proud of it.

In Boston, the Peabody and Adams families are still around. I was in Boston the other day. In Salem, Mass., some say the crickets chirp: "Peabody, Peabody."

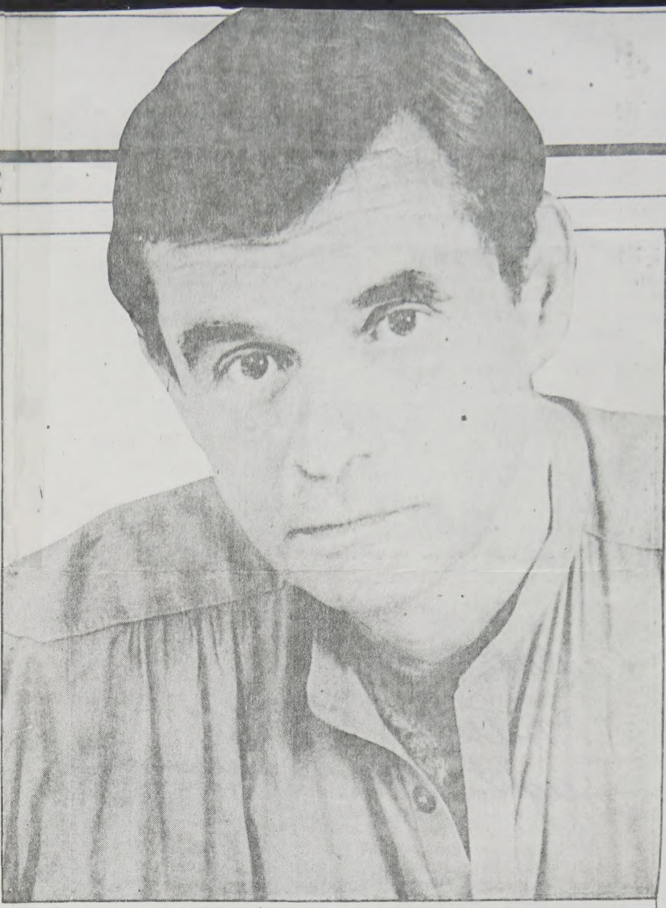
Q. Does notoriety bring status?

A. Automaker John Z. De Lorean (now charged with cocaine trafficking and racketeering) would never have gotten anywhere with the rich in Boston or Philadephia. His money wasn't old enough. But because of the scandal, his wife, Cristina, is on everybody's guest list in New York City.

I was in New York this past summer. Claus von Bulow (the millionaire, still free on bond after being convicted of attempting to murder his wife with injections of insulin) goes everywhere. He'll never see the inside of a jail, I'm sure. He's still very popular. He lunches every day at the Century Club.

Q. When the rich aren't dieting on yogurt, what do they eat?

A. They eat baby food. Bread pudding is a big thing. The Duchess of Windsor once announced bread pudding was her favorite dessert. What the rich serve in their homes is rather simple. Crackers and little tiny baby pizzas are very big. The rich also eat chicken, probably Shake 'n' Bake, prepared by someone else.



Stephen Birmingham, author of "The Auerbach Will," spoke at the Jewish Book Festival here.

Pasta salad seems to be "in." Caviar is for the showy. Chocolates are for company. Gloria Vanderbilt told me her chocolates are hidden because she tends to nibble on them.

The rich do drink a lot, but they're not supposed to get drunk. I know a very social lady on Long Island who shall remain nameless. She has a daiquiri set up on her breakfast tray. She drinks through the day. I've never seen her drunk. On the other hand, I don't think she's ever entirely sober.

Q. Speaking of Gloria Vanderbilt, she's an heiress and enomously successful designer. Why does she work so hard?

A. Gloria and Jackie Onassis, too, have a real obsession about money. Maybe it's because they grew up in the Depression. They're always wanting more.

Q. What does the Upper Crust wear and drive?

A. Ralph Lauren and his Polo shirts are "out." In Beverly Hills, custom-made cars are status-y, but I wonder how many are paid for. In mainline Philadelphia, the rich drive Chevy station wagons. I was told of one Philadelphia girl who asked a friend to help pick out her wedding gown. The bride-to-be reached for a Sears Roebuck catalog.

In New York, most don't drive cars. Instead, the rich radio a cab or limousine service. Jackie Onassis uses a limousine. She also has her own BMW. Her instructions to the limousine service are that she can never have the same driver twice. It's for security and, I guess, because she doesn't want drivers selling items to columnists.

Q. Is there a black aristocracy?

A. Yes, in Atlanta, Washington, D.C., and of all places, Newton, Mass. It's really based not so much on money as on education. If your grandfather was president of Tuskegee Institute or Howard University, or you can count eight Ph.Ds. in your immediate family, that's good status. In Atlanta, the black Old Guard is very snobbish. Members are lawyers, doctors and funeral directors.

Q. Reportedly, Jimmy Carter's down-home style didn't go over with Washington socialites. How are the Reagans being accepted?

A. I think Nancy Reagan is trying, but hasn't really succeeded, in turning the White House into the glamorous Camelot place it was when Jackie Kennedy was first lady. But she's definitely brought a touch of elegance.

Also, the Reagans have a rich class of friends. When Carter was president nobody wanted to go to the White House because you couldn't get a drink there.

Q. When President Reagan is otherwise occupied, his wife is often accompanied by a fellow named Jerry Zipkin. Zipkin frequently escorts Upper Crust women. How important is he?

A. The power Zipkin has is extraordinary. If he stops at your table and says, "Hello, darling. Love your hair," that's supposed to convey status. But when he passes by some giant luminary like Estee Lauder of cosmetics fame, it's like being cut off the face of the earth. Zipkin is a slum lord. He inherited some tenements in Harlem.

Q. What about hanky panky and the rich? How shocked were you when Alfred S. Bloomingdale, a founder of the Diner's Club credit card organization and heir to Bloomingdale's department store, was sued by a young former actress in a $10 million palimony suit?

A. Everybody knew Bloomingdale had a girlfriend. But a mistress nowadays is expensive. She's not tax-deductible. Your company won't pay for her. Today, there's something much more important.

Q. What's that?

A. The "kept" man. A longtime matriarch of New York society has had one for years. Her late husband was a reformed alcoholic who wasn't comfortable going to parties. Whether the companion is on salary, I don't know. Lots of wealthy widows have young men. The men are attractive, amusing and have time to take them to the theater, museums and the couturier. Some women marry them.

Q. How rich is rich?

A. As someone once said, any man who knows how rich he is isn't very rich. To me, being rich isn't all that great. I think some of the younger Rockefellers have even changed their name because they find it such a handicap. People are always fawning over them and trying to have them for dinner.

What money I make in my lifetime, I will spend. I won't leave a penny to my children. I couldn't bear to do that to them.

On this day

I have married

my friend,

the one I laugh with,

live for, dream with,

love

Our Heritage

It is not the faces upon which we look;
It isn't the bindings that make the Book;
It's the message between the covers we seek
And the minds to minds that really speak.

It's something fine to have family pride,
To honor those, who have lived and died,
Who left us a heritage, as their heirs;
God grant we leave one, as rich as theirs!

Dear Ray,

We appreciate your letter expressing interest in one of the Navy's most modern Guided Missile Cruisers. We are indeed very proud of the USS BIDDLE and it is always a pleasure to extend our reputation.

I am enclosing a copy of our command history and a price list of items available from the ship's store. Due to the many requests for memorabilia it is not feasible from the financial viewpoint to forward them.

Please send a cashier's check or money order for the items you wish, payable to:

Disbursing Officer
USS BIDDLE (CG-34)

Your articles will be happily sent to you. (Please be sure to include sufficient postage).

Thank you for your continuing interest in the US Navy.

Sincerely,

P.D. RAY

A BRIEF OPERATING HISTORY OF USS BIDDLE (CG-34)

USS BIDDLE has set a fast pace in more than a decade of fleet duty. In 1968 and again in 1969 she deployed to the Pacific and served a total of fourteen months off the coast of Vietnam.

An extensive overhaul at Portsmouth Naval Shipyard in 1970-71 brought many improvements in living accomodations and combat systems. Then, in early 1972, BIDDLE again deployed to Vietnam and on July 19th, in the Gulf of Tonkin, BIDDLE was attacked by five MIG aircraft in two raids. She destroyed one MIG with Terrier Missiles and possibly a second with gunfire. The ship was awarded a Navy Unit Commendation for "exceptionally meritorious service while engaged in combat operations against the enemy in North Vietnam." In all her Vietnam service BIDDLE controlled no less than 168 strikes against the enemy and was responsible for the rescue of survivors from 27 American planes downed in action.

For the first time since her commissioning BIDDLE deployed to the Mediterranean in mid 1974 where she participated in the Cyprus crisis plus search and rescue operations for a TWA airliner that had crashed into the sea fifty miles off the coast of Greece. In October the ship steamed into the Black Sea, to exercise the provisions of the Montreaux Convention which govern passage through the Dardanelles and Bosporus Straits.

BIDDLE returned to her birthplace of Bath Iron Works in Maine for another extensive overhaul commencing in March 1975. Coming out of the shipyard in April 1976 BIDDLE conducted training in the Caribbean during the summer and in the fall participated in a multi-lateral NATO exercise in the Baltic and North Seas. Ports in Denmark, Germany, Belgium and France were visited. Upon completion of this at sea period BIDDLE received a Light Airborne Multi-Purpose System (LAMPS) helicopter detachment, significantly enhancing her anti-submarine warfare capabilities.

Two more Mediterranean deployments followed in mid 1977 and late 1978 where ports in Greece, Italy, Spain, France and Tunisia hosted the ship. In November 1978 BIDDLE again entered the Black Sea, this time for liberty call in the Socialist Republic of Romania city of Constanta.

Following a return to homeport and operations with the U.S. Second Fleet BIDDLE entered the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard for the third complex overhaul of her busy life. Fourteen months later, in November of 1980, USS BIDDLE commenced an arduos schedule to again ready herself for prolonged at sea operations wherever and whenever duty calls.

State of New Jersey)) Burlington County))ss

Be it remembered that on the twenty fifth day of March A.D. Eighteen hundred and seventy before me the subscriber, a commissioner appointed for taking the acknowledgement and proof of deed, in and for said County, personally appeared Colin M.F. Reed who I am satisfied in the subscribing witness, who doth acknowledge that he was present and witnessed the signing of this agreement to create a capital stock for the COLUMBUS SEMINARY ASSOCIATION by each and every one whose names are hereunto subscribed. All of which is certified by me, John N. Conner, Com. of Deeds...Recorded April 6th A.D. 1870;W.M.Risdon,Clk.

MANSFIELD CONSTABLES

10thmo,15th,1685-John Snowden; 1688 & 9- John Brone (Brown)pa 89; 1690-Michael Buffin-nominated but excused; 1691-John Curtis;1692-3 James Croft(ref. EMW);1693, Feb. 20-Nathaniel Records (pa.159); 1694-William Beal, Jr.;1695-William Biddle, Jr.(omnia bene";1696-Thomas Duggles; 1697-Joseph English; 2nd.mo, 21, 1697/8-James Antram, (pa 201, 212); 1698 Mordecai Andrews;An interesting note is that Thomas Scattergood, whom the historians said was the first white man in the Columbus area, was chosen co-constable at Burlington 1698 (pa. 213).

1701 William Foster (pa. 261); 12thmo.12, 1704/5-Nathaniel Richards and Richard French, (pa.292); Sept.4, 1705-Hugh Hutchins(pa.306,7); 12thmo.10, 1706-Thomas Potts (pa.313,321);Mar.23, 1708-Henry Cook (pa.330).

From this point, 1709, the Burlington Court records were under new scrutiny by the English appointed governor..
(* from E. M. Woodward's "History of Burlington & Mercer Countys", which Mrs. Walter Reeder loaned to me.)

The township records are missing previous to 1875. The N. J. Archives file has the name of the out-of-township person who had these as of 1900. To make any history complete,all records should be in the township's file. I hope that someday, these rocords will be returned.

*1773- Martin Gibbs(He was Mrs. Reeders ancestor and was a well known surveyor);

From the books at the township: Commissioners-
1874William Carty; 1883-C.S. Sharp; 1883-5-John E. Aaronson; 12/5/1883- C.S. Sharp; 1884-John R. Taylor; 1885-J. Schumarew; 2/1887-Isiah Atkinson (pa.63).

The constables of the 1800's were also the janitors for the town hall as stated when they received their salaries:
1875- Daniel Daniel($25.); 1877-1881-Thomas Gifford(also an overseer of poor in 1880); 1882-1884-D. Danley;1885-6-Thomas Gifford; 1890-Thomas Ingling(pa.80);

At this point here seems to be two constables- one in charge received $25./yr and the assistant less:

1892-1908-William D. Comp, William Comfort, Thomas E.H.Ingling; 1894-Wm. D. Comp, Daniel Danley; 1903&4ibid and D. Hankins; 1908-W.D.Comp, D. Danley, & Theodore Hankins; 19091948 George S. Shaedle assisted by Harry C. Grant (1911-1914).

Justices of the Peace

1929-Frank Lockman and Charles L. Carslake(Ref. Trenton Sunday Times).
Charles was also Burlington County Detective.
